MacArthur Says: 'I Was Never More Confident In Victory'

TOKYO, July 27 — Gen. Douglas MacArthur made a flying trip today to the Korean battlefront where he declared:

"I never was more confident in victory—of ultimate victory—in my life than I am now."

The supreme commander of United Nations forces fighting in Korea declared that a prolonged and difficult war lay ahead before the Communist invaders are thrown out of South Korea and peace is restored in the war torn country.

MacArthur uttered his resolute declaration at an American airfield in Korea but warned that there were "new heartaches and new setbacks" ahead. Then, he emphatically added:

"I stand by my previous declaration that the North Koreans have lost their chance for victory.

"I am completely confirmed in the estimate I made to the President of the United States last week that the enemy has lost his chance of victory."

He said that victory "will not come to us instantly or without a long hard row—in this type of fighting you must expect ups and downs."

MacArthur said that the United Nations can expect trouble in the interval between "the initiative the enemy has and the initiative he is going to lose."

The five-star general declared that conferences he held with his top military field generals gave him optimism.

MacArthur left his Tokyo headquarters in great secrecy Thursday morning, arriving in Korea at 10:45 a. m. He immediately went into conference with Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, U. S. Eighth Army commander and chief of the UN armies in the field.

Walker said supplies and reinforcements were discussed during a 90-minute conference.

MacArthur, following the conference with Walker and visits to Fifth Airforce field headquarters and other units on the Korea battle lines, paid tribute to the commanders of all American, South Korean, British and Australian land, sea and air forces.

MacArthur declared they were contributing solidly to "ultimate victory."

The supreme commander said:

"Gen. Walker and his division commanders are handling the situation with marked energy and superior efficiency.

"South Korean forces and South Korean commanders have shown a degree of resilience that is inspiring.

"The Airforce and Navy have been splendid in every way.

"Everyone understands that no matter how great their efficiency they cannot, through their own might alone, stop the vigorous advancing ground troops.

"It seems to me that they have done everything that it was possible for them to do."

MacArthur was chipper and buoyant and exuded confidence as he exchanged banter-ing reminiscenses with war correspondents he knew from other campaigns.

INS War Correspondent Frank Conniff told MacArthur that American troops were fighting well, and MacArthur said:

"American troops always fight well."

Then he added:

"And so do the troops of all United Nations.'

MacArthur crowded numerous actvities into his short visit.

He visited wounded at an evacuation hospital where Gen. Walker reported MacArthur was "visibly affected" as he walked between rows of injured men, talking to some, patting others on the shoulder.

MacArthur conferred at length with President Rhee of South Korea, complimenting him on the part his South Korean troops are playing in the war against the invading Communists.

It was MacArthur's second trip to Korea since the Red invasion of South Korea was launched June 25.

His first trip to the war front was on June 29, just four days after the invaders pushed south from the 38th Parallel, heavily armed with Russian-made tanks, planes and other war equipment.

President Doubts Need For Price Curbs, Rationing

WASHINGTON, July 27—President Truman today rejected Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch's demand for all-out economic mobilization and declared flatly that he does not think price controls or rationing will be necessary.

The chief executive told his news conference he hopes the conflict in the Far East will be confined to Korea and that there will be no World War III.

He said he has given Congress his full and complete proposals for limited controls of the nation's economy, new taxes, defense spending and other measures needed to win in Korea and build strength against other Communist aggression.

Mr. Truman was asked if he agreed with legislators who have asserted that he will ask price controls and rationing by Labor Day.

He replied emphatically that he had no such intention.

THE PRESIDENT said that if it becomes necessary to impose full economic controls, including price ceiling and rationing, all such steps will be taken at one time.

Asked if he believes this will be necessary, he snapped:

I do not.

Meanwhile, Rep. Kunkel, (R) Pa., a member of the House Banking Committee, introduced a bill to implement Baruch's proposals.

At the same time, Rep. Wolcott, (R) Mich., predicted that if Mr. Truman's economic control requests are granted price controls and rationing will follow "in 60 days."

Wolcott, top GOP member of the House Banking Committee, declared that the President's economic control bill is "more drastic" than the mobilization plan urged by Baruch.

The congressman added:

"It must naturally follow, if you have priorities and allocations of scarce materials, as the President requested, that price control and rationing will result in 60 days."

The President also said that he plans to ask Congress, before it recesses, to take action to provide additional funds for further arms aid to the North Atlantic Pact nations.

The President rejected Baruch's proposal for price controls, rationing and wage curbs and said they are not necessary.

MR. TRUMAN said that he does not plan to ask for such controls unless complete mobilization of the nation's economy and manpower becomes necessary. He said he fervently hopes that such a step will not be necessary.

The President emphasized that if further controls are needed beyond those he already has requested, it will be necessary for complete national mobilization. That means mobilization of everything—the nation's economy, its manpower, and all the rigid wartime controls that must go with such mobilization.

Mr. Truman said that his comment on the Baruch testimony is in his message to the Congress.

The President was asked:

"Mr. President, I take it that your answer means that you have outlined your full proposals for steps to meet the Korean situation, as of now."

The President clenched his

World War II Still Going On

COLUMBUS, July 27 — If you've been wondering just what war it is, it's officially still World War II.

Ohio Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy was called upon to decide the question by Floyd R. Hartpence, superintendent of the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Orphans Home. Hartpence wanted to know what date he should use for ending a veteran's World War II service for admission of veterans' children to the home.

Duffy said the war, once started, could not be ended officially except by presidential proclamation or by joint resolution of Congress. Neither of these has taken place, Duffy added.

$5 Billion Tax Increase To Be Only A Starter

WASHINGTON, July 27—President Truman said today his request for a $5 billion tax boost will be followed by recommendations for still higher taxes to meet military preparedness costs.

The chief executive told his news conference that new tax recommendations will be made as soon as a study of the entire tax structure is completed.

He explained that he asked for a $5 billion interim increase to pay for the Korean war and a start on formidable rearmament because that was the simple thing to do in the present circumstances.

Mr. Truman remarked that it should have been done four years ago. This referred to his repeated requests to Congress for reimposition of the $5 billion tax slash voted by the 80th Congress over his veto.

THE PRESIDENT said the whole tax structure is being studied carefully for revisions that will be equitable and fair to all. He added that the whole question, including excise taxes, is very controversial.

Meanwhile, Congress is preparing to give Mr. Truman the $5 billion emergency increase, but economy-minded legislators also want to slash non-military spending.

A showdown is expected in the Senate on the army civil functions appropriations bill which Sen. Douglas, (D) Ill., calls a "pork barrel" measure.

Sen. Byrd, (D) Va., declared that the President's tax recommendation is not enough. Byrd said:

"We ought to raise $5 billion in taxes and cut $5 billion off of non-military expendtures to meet the added spending."

Sen. Bridges, (R) N. H., said that "the first step is to cut the non-defense items in the budget."

Bridges pointed out that the flood control and rivers and harbors projects in the Army civil functions appropriations bill are to be taken up by the Senate today.

The New Hampshire senator stated that the economy group will force rollcall votes to put senators on record on individual spending items.

Senate Republican Policy Chairman Taft of Ohio said that there is "no question" but that Republicans will go along with a tax increase in some form. He said:

"As a general principle, I think there should be taxes to cover the war expenditures."

Taft told newsmen that he thinks the emergency might last for years—as long as the threat of Russian aggression continues.

Meanwhile, the joint House-Senate tax staff begins work on the President's request for boosting withholding taxes an average of 15 to 18 percent Oct. 1 along with a retroactive increase in corporation taxes.

Ko-Reds Blasted From 2 Towns; Big Thrust Ahead

TOKYO, July 28—(Friday)—American forces in Korea's southwest sector captured one town Thursday and drove the Reds from a second as Communist troops threw the opening punch of a massive tank-led offensive on the central front.

U. S. infantrymen withdrew into mountain positions in one area of the central front before the onslaught of numerically greater enemy assault troops.

General Douglas MacArthur in a communique issued at 12:40 a. m. Friday reported that U. S. infantrymen occupied Hamyang, 80 air miles northwest of the vital southeast port of Pusan.

Front dispatches said the newly-arrived U. S. ground forces in the southwest sector drove North Korean Fourth Division troops out of Hadong, south of Hamyang and 70 miles west of Pusan. The American troops delayed entering the town because of huge fires set by U. S. rocket-launching jet planes.

THE AMERICAN withdrawal on the central front occurred northeast of Yongdong where units of the U. S. 25th Divison drew back before superior numbers.

Other enemy columns moved into position for an expected big assault on the First Cavalry Division east of Yongdong.

MacArthur's communique said that the American combat patrols made contact "with what is believed to be an enemy regiment in Namwon, west of Hamyang."

The communique in dealing with the entire war picture as of Thursday night said:

"The overall theater remained relatively tranquil with no major or decisive action taking place during the last 24 hours.

"Enemy pressure continued, but in such a manner as to indicate that the invaders were regrouping and reorganizing. Movement continued to be made at night on roads and to assembly areas."

Yongdok, battered enemy-held city on the east coast, remained under United Nations naval bombardment and ground attack.

5th Straight Day Of Blows Recorded

TOKYO, July 27 — Allied airmen pounded heavily on Communist communications lines today for the fifth day in a row.

Favorable weather permitted a huge turnout of planes.

In the five days, more than 800 tons of bombs have been rained on at least 60 separate targets up to mid-afternoon Thursday.

Naval and Airforce planes are working closely with ground troops in a renewed campaign designed to isolate the battlefeld from the main sources of supply of the Communist invaders.

A U. S. Far East Airforce spokesman said that four major highways and three major railroads on the western side of the Korean peninsula were blasted Thursday.

The spokesman reported that 22 railroad bridges, 31 highway bridges and seven marshalling yards have been hit during the first four days of the new air offensive.

"Many of the bridges are unusuable," he said, "which means they are impassable at present."

To date during the entire war, the spokesman said, the North Koreans have lost 80 planes. He reported that 18 of them were

COLUMBUS, July 27 — The Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company's fight against a Columbus rate-setting ordinance will be resumed before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio in September.

Hearings were continued yesterday after the company asked for rates which would yield a six and a half percent return on its investment and the city replied that these rates would be too high.

UnAmerican Panel To Ignore Further Probe

WASHINGTON, July 27 — A top member of the House UnAmerican Activities Committee indicated today that the group will side-step a probe of charges by Sen. McCarthy, (R) Wis., that Communists infiltrate the State Department.

The member predicted that Democrats on the committee will vote to block any renewal of the investigation recently concluded in the Senate unless startling new evidence is uncovered.

The committee source, who asked that he not be identified, said the Democrats would avoid the issue on grounds that it would be a discourtesy to open hearings on a matter with which a Senate committee has dealt.

A Senate foreign relations subcommittee headed by Sen. Tydings, (D) Md., concluded its investigation with a controversial report which termed McCarthy's accusations "a fraud and a hoax."

The House prober pointed out that Democrats in the Senate—alike—voted solidly to accept the findings. There are five Democrats and four Republicans on the UnAmerican Activities Committee.

FALLING BACK to foothills near Yongdong (1), First Division troops are taking up previously prepared positions defending the approaches to Taegu and Pusan. Meanwhile, a North Korean drive down the west coast of South Korea was pressed without interruption. From Kwangju (2), the Reds were moving along the south coast. To the north, U. ## 69-Group Airforce Gets President's OK, Report

WASHINGTON, July 27—President Truman is reported today to have approved formation of a 69-group Airforce, only one less than the 70 groups long sought by the air arm.

Congressional sources said Airforce Secretary Finletter has advised the House Armed Services Committee that combat strength will be increased from 48 to 69 groups.

Meanwhile, a Senate-approved bill lifting the manpower ceiling on the armed forces for four years is being returned to the House which suspended the limitation indefinitely. The difference will be threshed out in Senate-House conference.

The decision to enlarge the Airforce to almost the size recommended by the USAF, Congress and the President's Air Policy Commission stems from the Korean war.

Finletter testified before the House committee yesterday behind closed doors. Authoritative sources subsequently reported he had advised the group of the Airforce's new plans.

ONE SOURCE stated that Finletter will furnish the committee today with further details on the expansion program, with some estimate on how long it would take to build up 69 combat groups.

The end of 1952 was originally designated by the Air Policy Commission, which was headed by Finletter before he became Airforce secretary.

Up to now the President has refused to go along, insisting that 48 groups were sufficient

WASHINGTON, July 27—President Truman declared today that he has no plans now to order the use of the atom bomb in the Korean war. Mr. Truman was asked at his news conference:

Free Swimming Classes Set By Red Cross Here

Free swimming instruction in Gold Cliff Park will be offered by the Pickaway County Red Cross chapter beginning next week.

Lincoln S. Mader, chairman of the local chapter, said the free beginners' class will begin at 10 a. m. Monday in the park pool.

Carol Leist of Circleville will instruct the class of beginners. The instructor obtained her Red Cross certificate in Camp Limberlost, Ind., last year under the sponsorship of the local chapter.

Mader said the swimming course will be held from 10 a. m. until 11 a. m. daily and continue until the class has passed its requirements.

The chairman added that the training course should be completed within a week. Certificates will be issued to the beginners who complete the course.

25 Nations Assisting War Effort

UN Aide Certain Reds To Lose

LAKE SUCCESS, July 27—Secretary General Trygve Lie declared today that a United Nations victory in Korea will prevent a third world war.

The top UN official made his comment after 25 nations responded to his call for military assistance.

The replies brightened hopes that Allied expeditionary forces of from 40,000 to 60,000 men eventually will fight alongside hard-pressed American soldiers.

Lie already has assurances from Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Turkey and Thailand of troop contributions numbering in excess of 20,000 ground forces—including fully equipped infantry, armor and artillery units.

A dozen other UN governments are conferring with the unified command and can be expected to offer troops in sizeable numbers for service in Korea in the near future under the blue and white global flag.

On the basis of promises in hand and of confidential information, Lie observed:

"THE REPLIES demonstrate an encouraging increase in volume of assistance in supporting UN efforts for repelling the armed attack and to restore international peace and security in the area. If UN succeeds in this task, there will be no third world war."

Hailing the troop contributions, Chief U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin stated:

"Confidence in the peace-maintaining functions of UN increases with each effective addition to the Unified Forces. The ultimate victory over enslavement is advanced through lifted morale of the brave men now facing the invaders and by strong reinforcements on the way."

Among UN diplomats, the feeling is growing daily that Russia committed a grave blunder in erroneously assuming that the world organization would remain inactive in the Korean struggle.

At the same time, it is the conviction among seasoned UN delegates that the Soviet walkouts on the issue of Communist China proved the most damaging boomerang ever suffered by Russia and already have had such far-reaching repercussions that any future maneuver by the Soviets to recapture their former initiative is doubtful of success.

815 Casualties Now On U.S. List

Congressional sources said Airforce Secretary Finletter has advised the House Armed Services Committee that combat strength will be increased from 48 to 69 groups.

Meanwhile, a Senate-approved bill lifting the manpower ceiling on the armed forces for four years is being returned to the House which suspended the limitation indefinitely. The difference will be threshed out in Senate-House conference.

The decision to enlarge the Airforce to almost the size recommended by the USAF, Congress and the President's Air Policy Commission stems from the Korean war.

Finletter testified before the House committee yesterday behind closed doors. Authoritative sources subsequently reported he had advised the group of the Airforce's new plans.

ONE SOURCE stated that Finletter will furnish the committee today with further details on the expansion program, with some estimate on how long it would take to build up 69 combat groups.

The end of 1952 was originally designated by the Air Policy Commission, which was headed by Finletter before he became Airforce secretary.

Up to now the President has refused to go along, insisting that 48 groups were sufficient

No A-Bomb Use Is Contemplated

WASHINGTON, July 27—President Truman declared today that he has no plans now to order the use of the atom bomb in the Korean war. Mr. Truman was asked at his news conference:

"You have often said in the past that you would not hesitate to use the atom bomb again if it became necessary. Do you contemplate using the bomb now?"

The President replied tersely: No.

25 Nations Assisting War Effort

UN Aide Certain Reds To Lose

LAKE SUCCESS, July 27—Secretary General Trygve Lie declared today that a United Nations victory in Korea will prevent a third world war.

The top UN official made his comment after 25 nations responded to his call for military assistance.

The replies brightened hopes that Allied expeditionary forces of from 40,000 to 60,000 men eventually will fight alongside hard-pressed American soldiers.

Lie already has assurances from Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Turkey and Thailand of troop contributions numbering in excess of 20,000 ground forces—including fully equipped infantry, armor and artillery units.

A dozen other UN governments are conferring with the unified command and can be expected to offer troops in sizeable numbers for service in Korea in the near future under the blue and white global flag.

On the basis of promises in hand and of confidential information, Lie observed:

"THE REPLIES demonstrate an encouraging increase in volume of assistance in supporting UN efforts for repelling the armed attack and to restore international peace and security in the area. If UN succeeds in this task, there will be no third world war."

Hailing the troop contributions, Chief U. S. Delegate Warren R. Austin stated:

"Confidence in the peace-maintaining functions of UN increases with each effective addition to the Unified Forces. The ultimate victory over enslavement is advanced through lifted morale of the brave men now facing the invaders and by strong reinforcements on the way."

Among UN diplomats, the feeling is growing daily that Russia committed a grave blunder in erroneously assuming that the world organization would remain inactive in the Korean struggle.

At the same time, it is the conviction among seasoned UN delegates that the Soviet walkouts on the issue of Communist China proved the most damaging boomerang ever suffered by Russia and already have had such far-reaching repercussions that any future maneuver by the Soviets to recapture their former initiative is doubtful of success.

Free Swimming Classes Set By Red Cross Here

Free swimming instruction in Gold Cliff Park will be offered by the Pickaway County Red Cross chapter beginning next week.

Lincoln S. Mader, chairman of the local chapter, said the free beginners' class will begin at 10 a. m. Monday in the park pool.

Carol Leist of Circleville will instruct the class of beginners. The instructor obtained her Red Cross certificate in Camp Limberlost, Ind., last year under the sponsorship of the local chapter.

Mader said the swimming course will be held from 10 a. m. until 11 a. m. daily and continue until the class has passed its requirements.

The chairman added that the training course should be completed within a week. Certificates will be issued to the beginners who complete the course.

815 Casualties Now On U.S. List

WASHINGTON, July 27 — The Defense Department today announced the names of eight Americans killed, one wounded and 24 missing in action in the Korean war.

The withdrawal northeast of Yongdong was announced at U. S. Army advance headquarters in Korea where it was stated that Negro troops of the 25th Division, engaged in their first major battle of the conflict, continued a two-day fight against numerically superior Red forces.

INTERNATIONAL News Service War Correspondent John Rich, in a field headquarters dispatch receved in Tokyo at 11 o'clock Thursday night, quoted the announcement as stating that the hard-fighting American troops were forced to "withdraw before the overwhelming enemy numbers."

The furious battle northeast of Yongdong was raging in wooded mountains where the American Negro units were stoutly defending ridges and passes against the North Korean invaders. Several days ago the 25th Divison's famed Negro 24th Regiment paced South Korean troops in the recapture of the junction town of Yechon.

East of Yongdong, meanwhile, thousands of Communist troops moved in two large columns into the front lines for a momentarily anticipated offensive against the U. S. First Cavalry Division in the center of the arc-shaped Korean front.

In preliminary actions of what may develop into the Korean war's greatest battle, the forward units of three Red divisions, estimated to total about 22,500 troops, forced the Americans into new but small withdrawals.

The First Cavalry troops, with their artillery and tanks, braced themselves for the expected full fury of the enemy onslaught after MacArthur made a flying roundtrip visit to Korea and proclaimed his confidence in an "ultimate" United Nations victory.

In the sectors northeast and south of Yongdong, other American troops and South Korean forces either stood firm against enemy blows or counter-attacked to regain lost ground.

Simultaneously, swarms of land-based and carrier planes bombed, rocketed and strafed North Korean columns and communications while American and British warships hurled tons of shells at the enemy along both the east and west coasts of Korea.

BUT IT WAS in the middle of the curving land front that decisive fighting shaped up as the invading troops moved into line for a prodigious effort to crash through the Soeboeck mountain passes along the main rail-highway route to the vital entry port of Pusan.

A dispatch from an advanced American outpost east of Yongdong, received in Tokyo at 10:10 o'clock Thursday night, said the First Cavalry Division's mechanized troops were dug in "to resist an impending Communist attack expected hourly."

The dispatch said one Communist column was advancing on American positions by road from a southwesterly direction about five miles northwest of Hwanggan.

The latter town, straddling the trunk railroad leading to the southeast port of Pusan, snuggles in a mountain pass eight miles northeast of Yongdong and only 12 miles northwest of Kumchon, a big junction on the rail line.

The second Red assault column, the dispatch said, was reported moving to strike at the First Cavalry Division's flank in coordination with the expected frontal onslaught.

At the hour the dispatch was filed, the two enemy columns had not yet come to blows with the poised American troops.

U. S. Eighth Army field headquarters in Korea said the U. S. First Cavalry Division in the Yongdong sector killed about 2,500 North Korean troops in the three days of fighting up to Wednesday midnight. An Eighth Army spokesman said the Communists in that area have brought anti-aircraft guns up close to the front lines for the first time.

Northeast of Yongdong, the spokesman acknowledged, a regiment of the U. S. 25th Infantry Division was forced to yield about two miles Wednesday as the result of Red infiltrations that swung around both flanks and into the rear of the regiment. However, it was added, the line was re-established by "vigorous action."

In another sector, a 25th Division battalion lost some ground to attacking Red units but regained all of it with a counter-attack, the field headquarters officer announced.

They're growing the green stuff bigger nowadays.

For instance, Raymond G. Groce of North Court street has grown a cucumber 12 inches and one wart long. The thing weighs two and one half pounds.

Groce, a grower for Brehmer Greenhouse, said he had another on the vine that would have made the twelve-incher look undernourished. But some body swiped it.

But that's a grower's life—just one big pickle after another.

bagged on the ground last week at Pyongchang, where they may have been brought for staging air attacks.

FEAF SAID THAT Americans have lost only one aircraft to airborne enemy fighters to date, and two more in "air action"—meaning anti-aircraft fire.

Wednesday's phase of the air offensive was featured by the virtually complete demolition of the town of Hwachon-Ni, northwest of Hamchang on the central war front.

British and American carrier aircraft attacked the town and apparently struck an ammunition dump. The explosion touched off a series of blasts that levelled the town.

Nine enemy tanks fled the town during the explosions and were attacked and damaged.

Other carrier planes operating in the area caused a landslide that covered the road in the valley northwest of Hamchang. Tanks and troops were hit on the road.

B-29 Superfortresses, using bombs as large as 1,000 pounds, concentrated their fire on the area immediately below the 38th Parallel Wednesday, with 20 bridges coming under attack.

They were aided by B-26s which fired on pontoon bridges that the Communists have thrown across the Han river at the fallen Korea capital of Seoul.

Farm Machinery Thief Placed On Probation

David A. Colliton, 43, of Laurelville Route 1 was placed on three-year probation Wednesday by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Colliton was arrested by the sheriff's department for stealing a manure spreader from a farm on Route 56 about three miles east of Circleville.

He was indicted for larceny by the grand jury and pleaded innocent during arraignment May 20. He changed the plea to guilty June 8.

Judge Radcliff Wednesday suspended Colliton's sentence and placed him on probation. Terms are that he violate no laws, refrain from alcoholic drinks, report once a month to the prosecuting attorney, pay $45.21 costs, stay out of Pickaway County but not leave Ohio.

and that the nation could not bear the financial burden of a larger airforce.

Airforce spokesmen have estimated it will cost $8 billion a year to maintain a 70-group Airforce after it has been completely built up. The cost of a 48-group Airforce is approximately $4.5 billion.

Congress twice appropriated $750 million in excess of the President's recommendations for the procurement of sufficient new planes to enable the Airforce to embark on its goal.

The President on both occasions blocked their expenditure for that purpose.

As a result of the Korean war, however, the President has asked Congrss for an additional $10.5 billion. Of this amount $2,777,300,000 will be allocated for the purchase of new planes, guided missiles and radar equipment.

On Jan. 1, 1948, in releasing his commission's recommendations Finletter stated that 70 groups was the minimum force required to maintain national security.

teeth and said:

"I have and I think them right, or I wouldn't have done it.

When the question of price controls and rationing was pursued further, the President said that when it becomes necessary to impose full economic controls on the nation and complete mobilization, all such steps, including price controls and rationing, will be taken together.

He was asked: "Do you think this will be necessary?"

THE PRESIDENT answered: I do not.

Asked about higher taxes, and such matters as excise taxes, the President said that the whole question of taxes beyond those he has now recommended, comprises a very controversial subject.

He said that he recommended imposition of higher taxes to be put into effect now and to bring $5 billion in additional revenues because that was the simple thing to do in the present circumstances.

Burglars Fail To Make Gain

Thieves apparently made a dry run Wednesday when they broke into a Jackson Township farm house.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff said the door of the Pete Jacobs home near Fox Postoffice was pried open sometime Wednesday and the house was thoroughly searched.

The deputy said that after checking all of his possessions, Jacobs reported nothing missing.

Office Switch Idea Good, But Cost Too High

A proposal to switch two offices in the basement of Pickaway Courthouse apparently has struck a financial snag.

The proposal called for switching the offices now occupied by Pickaway County veterans service officer and the county board of elections.

According to the county commissioners, the idea sounded "like a good one" when first brought up, and they gave it tentative approval.

"But," said one commissioner, "that was before we knew how much it was going to cost. It's very doubtful if we'll approve it now that we know the change will cost $325."

He explained that $125 would be spent to build a partition in the present board of elections office for use by the service officer. The rest would be spent to build cabinets to file election reports.

Pickle Grown 12 Inches And One Wart Long

They're growing the green stuff bigger nowadays.

For instance, Raymond G. Groce of North Court street has grown a cucumber 12 inches and one wart long. The thing weighs two and one half pounds.

Groce, a grower for Brehmer Greenhouse, said he had another on the vine that would have made the twelve-incher look undernourished. But somebody swiped it.

But that's a grower's life—just one big pickle after another.

bagged on the ground last week at Pyongchang, where they may have been brought for staging air attacks.

FEAF SAID THAT Americans have lost only one aircraft to airborne enemy fighters to date, and two more in "air action"—meaning anti-aircraft fire.

Wednesday's phase of the air offensive was featured by the virtually complete demolition of the town of Hwachon-Ni, northwest of Hamchang on the central war front.

British and American carrier aircraft attacked the town and apparently struck an ammunition dump. The explosion touched off a series of blasts that levelled the town.

Nine enemy tanks fled the town during the explosions and were attacked and damaged.

Other carrier planes operating in the area caused a landslide that covered the road in the valley northwest of Hamchang. Tanks and troops were hit on the road.

B-29 Superfortresses, using bombs as large as 1,000 pounds, concentrated their fire on the area immediately below the 38th Parallel Wednesday, with 20 bridges coming under attack.

They were aided by B-26s which fired on pontoon bridges that the Communists have thrown across the Han river at the fallen Korea capital of Seoul.

Local Legion Committees Are Selected

Farm Machinery Thief Placed On Probation

David A. Colliton, 43, of Laurelville Route 1 was placed on three-year probation Wednesday by Judge William D. Radcliff in Pickaway County common pleas court.

Colliton was arrested by the sheriff's department for stealing a manure spreader from a farm on Route 56 about three miles east of Circleville.

He was indicted for larceny by the grand jury and pleaded innocent during arraignment May 20. He changed the plea to guilty June 8.

Judge Radcliff Wednesday suspended Colliton's sentence and placed him on probation. Terms are that he violate no laws, refrain from alcoholic drinks, report once a month to the prosecuting attorney, pay $45.21 costs, stay out of Pickaway County but not leave Ohio.

69-Group Airforce Gets President's OK, Report

and that the nation could not bear the financial burden of a larger airforce.

Airforce spokesmen have estimated it will cost $8 billion a year to maintain a 70-group Airforce after it has been completely built up. The cost of a 48-group Airforce is approximately $4.5 billion.

Congress twice appropriated $750 million in excess of the President's recommendations for the procurement of sufficient new planes to enable the Airforce to embark on its goal.

The President on both occasions blocked their expenditure for that purpose.

As a result of the Korean war, however, the President has asked Congrss for an additional $10.5 billion. Of this amount $2,777,300,000 will be allocated for the purchase of new planes, guided missiles and radar equipment.

On Jan. 1, 1948, in releasing his commission's recommendations Finletter stated that 70 groups was the minimum force required to maintain national security.

No Rations Seen Needed

teeth and said:

"I have and I think them right, or I wouldn't have done it.

When the question of price controls and rationing was pursued further, the President said that when it becomes necessary to impose full economic controls on the nation and complete mobilization, all such steps, including price controls and rationing, will be taken together.

He was asked: "Do you think this will be necessary?"

THE PRESIDENT answered: I do not.

Asked about higher taxes, and such matters as excise taxes, the President said that the whole question of taxes beyond those he has now recommended, comprises a very controversial subject.

He said that he recommended imposition of higher taxes to be put into effect now and to bring $5 billion in additional revenues because that was the simple thing to do in the present circumstances.

Burglars Fail To Make Gain

Thieves apparently made a dry run Wednesday when they broke into a Jackson Township farm house.

Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff said the door of the Pete Jacobs home near Fox Postoffice was pried open sometime Wednesday and the house was thoroughly searched.

The deputy said that after checking all of his possessions, Jacobs reported nothing missing.

Office Switch Idea Good, But Cost Too High

A proposal to switch two offices in the basement of Pickaway Courthouse apparently has struck a financial snag.

The proposal called for switching the offices now occupied by Pickaway County veterans service officer and the county board of elections.

According to the county commissioners, the idea sounded "like a good one" when first brought up, and they gave it tentative approval.

"But," said one commissioner, "that was before we knew how much it was going to cost. It's very doubtful if we'll approve it now that we know the change will cost $325."

He explained that $125 would be spent to build a partition in the present board of elections office for use by the service officer. The rest would be spent to build cabinets to file election reports.

New Water Gallery Bids Due Tuesday

Million Gallons To Be Added Daily

Bids on construction of a new water infiltration gallery for Circleville will be taken next Tuesday.

The gallery, which will add one million gallons a day minimum to the city's water supply, will be paid for out of sale of $90,000 worth of first mortgage water revenue bonds.

Ervin Leist, city water department manager, said that although the increased water supply will give the city additional fire protection, it will have no effect in lowering fire insurance rates.

The gallery will be built on the west side of Scioto River, north of Darby Creek, and will be 400 feet long. The present gallery is only 250 feet long.

ACCORDING to plans in Leist's office, the proposed gallery will be constructed of 36-inch concrete tile laid with open joints to permit water to seep through. At one end will be a collection well from which the water will be pumped.

It will begin at the end of the present gallery and run west. Present gallery is about 17 feet below the ground. The new one will be about 20 feet down.

At each end of the gallery will be sealed manholes. The gallery will be backfilled with coarse filter material to allow a free flow of water. Leist said the present gallery was constructed sometime in 1885.

One-Way Streets Bringing 'Fun'

COLUMBUS, July 27 — You never saw such fun in your life . . . .as motorists on the new one-way street system in Columbus.

The new one-way streets proved to be embarrassing to some drivers caught driving the wrong way.

But Police Lt. George W. Scholer, head of the traffic bureau, said the system was "at least 75 percent better than we expected."

Yesterday was the first of a 60-day experiment to straighten out traffic tieups in downtown Columbus.

THE WINDOW DISPLAY ABOVE ranked third out of an estimated 3,000 in the nation, brought a check for $100. It was made up by Max Noggle who is associated with the I. W. Kinsey Men's Store here. Noggle entered the window display in a contest sponsored by Style Mart, men's tailors.

Trouble Mounts For Man, 25

COLUMBUS, July 27—Twenty-five-year-old George Gilpin of Columbus has trouble to spare today.

Freed yesterday of an assault and battery charge in connection wth the beating of a woman friend's mother in Youngstown, Gilpin was faced with a forgery count before he could leave court.

Gilpin was wanted by the Franklin County sheriff's office for passing a worthless $54 check to buy a plane ticket to Youngstown. And Youngstown police want him for a bad check charge.

That wasn't enough, Columbus police laid claim to Gilpin for a bad check charge and for questoning in connection with the sale of mortgaged property.

Housework Easy Without Nagging Backache

As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.

If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Stranger Found To Have Strange Auto Partner

He was just a motorist who wanted a grease job done on his car when he drove in.

But mechanics in the Joe Moats garage on East Franklin street discovered a more interesting side of his personality before he left.

They found he was the owner of a two-headed, two-bodied, four-legged, three-tailed calf. And he kept the critter in his car.

Identity of the monster-calf owner was not obtained. Mechanics said the motorist stopped at the garage about noon Wednesday, drove away immediately after the car had been greased. The car bore Florida license plates.

Rare Pig Disease Is Studied

Warning Given On 'Yellow Belly'

COLUMBUS, July 27—A serious swine disease that causes heavy losses on some Midwest farms is similar to a malaria-like disease affecting cattle in southern states called anaplasmosis, research veterinarians have found.

The American Foundation for Animal Health reported today that the swine disease, which has the scientific name of eperythrozoonosis, known commonly as "yellow belly," is caused by a tiny organism that invades the blood stream. The parasite, which attacks red blood cells, was recently isolated by veterinarians.

They suspect that blood-sucking insects carry the disease from animal to animal in the same way insects transmit anaplasmosis in cattle herds.

In one form, affected swine may be sick for a few days and then recover. Another form brings heavy death losses and the stricken pigs become extremely weak and their skins become yellow.

In the chronic form of the disease, the animals retain good appetites, but fail to make gains. Stunted pigs results. These animals may remain a source of infection for new additions to the herd, veterinarians say.

Wanted Killer Is Mowed Down By Policemen

CLEVELAND, July 27—Search for a 30-year-old Cleveland murderer ended last night when police found Edward Sadowski and shot him to death.

Sadowski, wanted for the slaying of Philip A. Faranda since May 1949, was killed by a detective and a patrolman who trapped him in the bedroom of an apartment on Cleveland's east side.

Police found Sadowski in the second-floor suite after receiving a tip from an informer. Sadowski was shot five times when he fired a German-made pistol at the policemen.

The search for Sadowski began soon after he killed Faranda, 36, in his home here.

Police said Faranda, a truck driver for a Lorain meat packing firm, was killed when he struggled with Sadowski after the latter entered Faranda's home to rob him.

Cop Has Chance, Turns Preacher

RAHWAY, N. J., July 27—Some temptations are too much, even for policemen.

Patrolman Robert Van Note of Rahway, finding a window open in Trinity Methodist church yesterday, crawled inside to investigate. He found no prowlers, but, stretching out before the pulpit were rows on rows of seats.

Police squads who rushed to the church at 4 a. m. in response to a deluge of calls about a preacher declaiming in raucous tones about the welfare of children, found Van Note, testing his oratorial powers, completely unaware that the loud speaker system, with outdoor amplifiers, was connected.

Doty was sentenced to death yesterday by a three-judge court. He stood poker-faced when Presiding Judge Clifford L. Belt of Belmont County read the verdict.

Doty had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. He was accused of slaying Miss Montag June 27. Her body was found in a field near St. Clairsville. Her head had been battered in.

Warning Given On 'Yellow Belly'

COLUMBUS, July 27—A serious swine disease that causes heavy losses on some Midwest farms is similar to a malaria-like disease affecting cattle in southern states called anaplasmosis, research veterinarians have found.

The American Foundation for Animal Health reported today that the swine disease, which has the scientific name of eperythrozoonosis, known commonly as "yellow belly," is caused by a tiny organism that invades the blood stream. The parasite, which attacks red blood cells, was recently isolated by veterinarians.

They suspect that blood-sucking insects carry the disease from animal to animal in the same way insects transmit anaplasmosis in cattle herds.

In one form, affected swine may be sick for a few days and then recover. Another form brings heavy death losses and the stricken pigs become extremely weak and their skins become yellow.

In the chronic form of the disease, the animals retain good appetites, but fail to make gains. Stunted pigs results. These animals may remain a source of infection for new additions to the herd, veterinarians say.

Wanted Killer Is Mowed Down By Policemen

CLEVELAND, July 27—Search for a 30-year-old Cleveland murderer ended last night when police found Edward Sadowski and shot him to death.

Sadowski, wanted for the slaying of Philip A. Faranda since May 1949, was killed by a detective and a patrolman who trapped him in the bedroom of an apartment on Cleveland's east side.

Police found Sadowski in the second-floor suite after receiving a tip from an informer. Sadowski was shot five times when he fired a German-made pistol at the policemen.

The search for Sadowski began soon after he killed Faranda, 36, in his home here.

Police said Faranda, a truck driver for a Lorain meat packing firm, was killed when he struggled with Sadowski after the latter entered Faranda's home to rob him.

Cop Has Chance, Turns Preacher

RAHWAY, N. J., July 27—Some temptations are too much, even for policemen.

Patrolman Robert Van Note of Rahway, finding a window open in Trinity Methodist church yesterday, crawled inside to investigate. He found no prowlers, but, stretching out before the pulpit were rows on rows of seats.

Police squads who rushed to the church at 4 a. m. in response to a deluge of calls about a preacher declaiming in raucous tones about the welfare of children, found Van Note, testing his oratorial powers, completely unaware that the loud speaker system, with outdoor amplifiers, was connected.

TEACHING FRIENDSHIP

IN ITS recent meeting in Ottawa, the World Organization of the Teaching Profession spent some time discussing the highly controversial proposal that national prejudices should be eliminated from school textbooks as a step toward achieving peaceful relations among peoples and nations. It is pointed out that many of the prejudices and distrusts between nations grow from the treatment of the history of their relations in the schools, more than from present situations.

Attempts to change that usually draw immediate criticism on the ground that history is to be distorted and the glorious past of the nation besmirched. Yet prejudices which grow from textbooks come not so much from what is said about one's own nation as from what is said about others. It has been a common point of historic and descriptive writings in all nations that in discussing other lands and peoples the tendency is to make the most of differences, of backwardness or quaintness, and of the record of wars, and to lose sight of the similarities, small contributions to the common good, and efforts at understanding. "War makes rattling good history, but Peace is poor reading," observed Thomas Hardy, and he seems not to have been alone in his thought.

We can readily recognize that it is wrong to distort history with the deliberate aim of making the historian's nation always appear in a good light, to the disadvantage of others. It would be equally wrong to falsify history to wipe out or gloss over the enmities of the past, since knowledge of them is necessary to an understanding of the present. The teaching of history and geography ought to be factual, and free from the discoloration of emotions, either personal or national, as nearly as human frailty permits.

PEANUT TROUBLES

A PROJECT to grow peanuts in Africa has brought much harassment to the Labor government in Great Britain. The cost of the project has greatly exceeded original estimates and the results have been distressingly less than expected. Now the government has narrowly escaped a defeat in the delicately balanced Parliament on a move to reduce the appropriation by a token sum of five pounds.

This has the look of a shrewd move in the Conservative plan to keep the government in a state of tension. Some Laborites were called from dinner parties to vote, and must have been ruffled at explaining to their hosts that they thereby saved five pounds' worth of peanuts.

These Days

My Dear Senator Tydings:

I took considerable time and care to read your report on the Communists in the State Department. It is an unfortunate report and will plague you all the days of your life, particularly as you issued it when our boys are being killed in Korea because of the errors made by those who conducted our foreign policy and whom you were supposed to investigate.

It is a pity that you lent yourself to such a small business. You may hurt Joe McCarthy but you cannot silence the conscience of America which is crying:

"Why did it happen? How could it have happened? Who arranged things in such a way that five years after a war is over, our sons are again dying in the malarial marshes of Asia?

Say what you will about McCarthy, we are actually being forced to fight in Korea, to mobilize for war, to set up priorities, to call up the Reserves, to spend our billions and to expend our sons.

Someone betrayed us. Someone is to blame. The resolution appointing your committee instructed you to find out who is to blame. That you did not even try to do.

I note in your report that you say some very nasty things about two fine Americans, Isaac Don Levine and Ralph deToledano. Let me quote you:

"It is also clear to us that Larsen was not the author of the quoted sections of the article, but that the allegations were made by Isaac Don Levine, and, as will appear later, possibly by Ralph deToledano. The fact that these persons have been reported to us as professional "anti-Communists," whose incomes and reputation depend on the developing and maintaining of new Communist fears."

As far back as 1917, Levine wrote a book on the Russian revolution which still stands up for its excellence. He has since 1917 opposed Communism in all its manifestations. He is no convert from Marx to whatever may be popular and profitable. He has always fought this evil and at great personal sacrifice.

There has been no profit for anyone in fighting the Communists. The profit has been all the other way. For years, anyone who fought the Communists was smeared as a Fascist. Such a writer found himself boycotted in Hollywood; the leftwing magazine editors killed his manuscripts; conservative editors felt that he was running counter to the times.

Yet, Levine continued patiently to build a case against the enemies of our country. He brought General Krivitsky's data to the fore. He was responsible for bringing Whittaker Chamber's accusations to Adolph A. Berle Jr. in the State Department and to the White House in 1939. That should have stopped Alger Hiss in his tracks, but Hiss was protected and Levine was smeared.

Early Diagnosis Important Here

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PILONIDAL disease is a term applied to a disorder which, though it occurs most frequently in young men of 20 to 25 years, is by no means rare in women. In this condition, there are cavities or spaces in the tissue over the lower part of the spine from which a passageway, known as a sinus, leads to the outside.

The exact cause of this condition is not known but its basic structure is thought to be inborn. Since it usually seems to become actively troublesome only in adult life, it is thought that the sex glands may provide the stimulus which sets it off.

Not Difficult to Diagnose

The condition is not a difficult one to diagnose. The symptoms are practically continuous and vary with the age of the patient. The younger the patient, the shorter the duration of the symptoms. There is usually pain in the affected region, together with some discharge of pus material due to infection of the cavity. The discharge is usually thin and colorless. In some cases there may be fever and chills. Abscesses often form in the affected area.

Unfortunately, the treatment for this disorder is not entirely satisfactory. The earlier the condition is diagnosed and the treatment carried out, the simpler is the operation required and the greater the chances of cure.

If there is an acute infection of the area present, the infected material must be drained out and the infection cleared up before further operative procedures are used.

In the Area

In one operation used, a cut is made in the area directly over the center of the cavity. The infected material is removed from the cavity and a tube inserted. Then the patient is instructed to take hot baths twice daily until the discharge decreases. At the end of a week, the tube is cut off so that the end of it is flush with the skin. The patient then gets no further dressings or treatment for a month. At this time, the tube is again cut off and, about three months later, in most cases, the tube is removed completely.

Attempts to eliminate all of the diseased tissue by means of the electric cautery have also been utilized.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. E. R.: Why should I constantly have tartar on my teeth?

Answer: The cause of the excessive accumulation of tartar on the teeth is not known. It is true that some persons have more tartar than others. There is no treatment of which I am aware, other than to have the tartar removed by your dentist at three-month intervals.

Try, Stop Me

In the heyday of the Klondike gold rush, one of the most accomplished and unscrupulous gamblers who made his headquarters in Skagway was named Soapy Smith. Smith hung a sign outside his honky-tonk proclaiming "telegraph office." Homesick miners paid anywhere from five to fifty dollars apiece to send wires to their loved ones. With speed that would have seemed suspicious to wiser heads, replies came back—collect—assuring the poor fish that the loved ones missed them about two hundred words' worth. The fact of the matter was that there was no telegraph wire within a hundred miles of Skagway. Soapy composed the telegrams himself.

According to Alva Johnston, the young minister of Skagway sought funds to erect a log church. Soapy Smith contributed a thousand dollars and urged fellow-townsmen to do likewise. When the gratified clergyman had run his funds up to thirty-six thousand dollars, Soapy's gang stole it all from him. Said Soapy's friend, Wilson Mizner, complacently, "Thirty-six for one is darn good odds."

Johnston will incorporate these and other Soapy Smith legends in a book he is preparing on the life of Wilson Mizner and his Klondike cronies.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

IVES AND BENEDICT jogged their horses and moved westward. They came within the hour to Lund's place, and the ground was black where the fire had burned itself out last night, and there were not so many men about, though some had remained. They stood in the yard; they sat upon chopping blocks; they leaned against the corral. None of them had slept, Ives supposed, and fatigue gave them an added sullenness. They showed interest as the pair rode up, but there was no wild excitement. They moved slowly toward the two horsemen, and Ives said wearily, not lifting his voice, "Here's your badge-toter."

Elisha Lund came to the door of his shack. He had his look and raised one huge hand and let it drop, and he smiled then, but it was a melancholy smile.

Ives said, "I fetched him, Lund."

Tana appeared behind Lund. She looked handsome; she held to her steady serenity, but her eyes were glad. Benedict looked hard at her and stepped down from the saddle and crossed half the distance to her and stopped then as though he had run against an invisible barrier. He said, "Doc told me, Tana," and stood waiting, and Ives thought: If she'd only smile—if she'd only say one word to him! But all the life seemed to go out of Tana; she placed a shoulder against the door jamb and said in a small voice, "I'll be getting back to Hammer."

Benedict said desperately, "I'd like to ride back with you."

For a moment Ives' sympathy was so strong it choked him, but he knew that Benedict's desire could be the undoing of all of them and he said sharply, "How much prodding do you think the colonel will stand?"

Benedict looked like a man with a bullet in him who was trying to carry the weight of that lead and stay on his feet, and it took him a moment to speak. He said then, "You're right, Doc. You'd better be the one who takes her through the gate."

"No," Ives said. "I'll never ride through that gate again."

Benedict jerked. "I really am beholden!"

Ives shook his head. "I don't want you packing that notion. You were only a small part of it, Rod." He looked at Tana. "The colonel talked to me. He spoke of Texas and the trail north. He spoke of Dodge City."

Tana stood now with all the serenity shaken out of her, and she said, "Brian—!" and her voice was stricken.

He said, "Nothing's changed for us, Tana," and he was remembering her hands beating against his chest, pushing him away from her. "It's just that we both know now."

He looked at Elisha Lund. "You'd better be the one to take her to Hammer."

Lund had frowned his perplexity, but he asked no questions, and Ives was grateful for that. Lund said, "I'll hitch up the wagon. She can tie her horse on behind." He lifted a huge hand again; there was welcome in the gesture. "You ain't had no breakfast yet."

Ives said, "All I want to do is sleep for a million years."

He stepped down from the saddle and one of the farmers moved forward and took the horse's trailing reins. It was Jorgensen; thus did Jorgensen acknowledge a bargain fulfilled. Ives lurched toward the shack, feeling done in; and Lund stepped aside to let him pass, and Tana lowered her eyes. When he was inside the shack, she looked at him—she'd got hold of herself again—and she said, "Good-bye, Brian," and he felt then that he would never see her again.

He said, "Good-bye, Tana," and seated himself upon a chair and began tugging at his boots, being very deliberate about it, being brutal. This was how he shut her out, and it had to be like this, quick and final for both of them. She moved out of the door and he sat holding a boot in his hand till Elisha Lund said, "Yoost climb in the bunk and snooze all you want. I'll be back soon."

Ives said, "Get her there as fast as you can. The colonel's got a right to be edgy till she shows up."

He looked about him. This shack was partitioned into two rooms and this one was the living room, he supposed, though it had a bunk built into one corner, and that made it a bedroom, too. A centering table held a huge Bible with a silver clasp and also a vase in which flowers had withered. The windows were brightly curtained; he recognized the feminine touch in flowers and curtains and remembered that Marybelle had spoken of her mother, but now he judged that Elisha Lund's wife was dead. Those withered flowers told him; there'd been no woman here these last couple of days to keep them watered.

He got off his other boot and stripped himself of his gun-belt and looked for a place to hang it. A curtained doorway gave off this room; he swept the curtain aside and peered into a lean-to tacked onto the back of the shack, making a third room. Here was a small iron bed; it was darker in the lean-to, and he stepped inside and laid his gun-belt upon a chair and set the boots on the floor and fell into the little bed.

He lay, his body slowly relaxing, but there was still too much tension in him for sleep to come. After a while he heard a wagon creaking in the yard; that would be Lund and Tana starting out for Hammer, he decided. He wondered about Marco Stoll; Stoll had headed this way last night, but he hadn't seen the man about and he hadn't thought to ask.

Benedict came into the shack. He said in a soft voice, "Doc—?" Ives muttered, and Benedict said, "I'm getting on into town. Maw will be worried. I'll see you later, Doc. And I'll keep an eye peeled for Brule, meanwhile."

Ives muttered again, feeling too drowsy to want to make real talk. Benedict left the shack; Ives heard his boots beat against the hard-packed earth beyond the doorway until the sound diminished and was lost. He felt sorry for Benedict, remembering Benedict's reaching out toward Tana today and Tana's rearing that invisible wall between them; and his thought was that both himself and Benedict had come against such a wall, he because of Dodge City and something that had happened twenty-three years ago, Benedict because there were two breeds of men on this range and no peace between the old and the new.

Thinking this, he fell asleep.

He awoke with that strange sensation that comes to a man who has turned day into night; he awoke not realizing his whereabouts at once and wondering whether it was morning and feeling altogether topsy-turvy. Someone had pulled a chair beside the bed and was sitting there; it was Marybelle. She smiled at him in the dimness of this lean-to.

"That's my bed you've been sleeping in, Doc," she said.

She leaned over him, still smiling; it was good to find her here. She was someone circumstance had brought close to him since he'd come back to this range; her presence took the edge from his lost feeling. He reached for her, and his arm went around her and he drew her to him. Her lips came to his with no evasion; he had never imagined what her kiss would be like, but it held coolness and comfort and belied the sensual roguishness her lips had suggested. He held her thus for a long moment and then she gently removed herself from his arms. She was shaken; he could tell that; he had never known another time when she wasn't in complete command of herself.

She said, "Doc, that wasn't exactly fair."

He said, "Then I'm sorry. You came close to me just once too often."

She shook her head. "I'm the one who was cheated. There's always a time when a man doesn't stand a chance. I've sat here by the bed waiting for that time."

She stood up. She laughed gaily. "You'll want something to eat. I'll get it for you."

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—For the first time, it is summer. You enter the park that is Central from the Columbus Circle side, and once again, as it can be so often in so many different sections of New York, it is like stepping into another world.

The roar of the city fades suddenly away, as if you had gone into a soundproofed room. To the south, the skyscrapers still loom gray and hazy in the sun, but they look like what the movie people call a process shot—a fake background against which the action takes place.

Here in the park, as you come into it, are greenery and laziness and people sitting on benches. They have ducked out of the furore momentarily, like a cat sneaking away from a group catfight and sitting on its haunches a few feet away, meditating.

The automobile tires make their sticky slapping sound on the tar road winding by, but otherwise there is no noise as you walk. As you go deeper into the beat-up old park, you see men and women sprawled on the grass in all kinds of positions, like tossed-away rag dolls.

A few are what we might call Respectable Citizens, but a great many more are the defeated ones, the bums. They have their shoes off and they lie asleep on the greensward in the sun, like so many toms that have prowled the night through and now enjoy the rest of the sinful.

One man sits in his undershirt on a bench and holds his head rigidly and awkwardly so his face is in line with the rays of the sun. He will have a Florida tan or, by gosh, he will know the reason why.

Further on, there are mothers and baby carriages under the big shade trees, and in one glade, a little girl-child takes her first faltering footsteps.

TEACHING FRIENDSHIP

IN ITS recent meeting in Ottawa, the World Organization of the Teaching Profession spent some time discussing the highly controversial proposal that national prejudices should be eliminated from school textbooks as a step toward achieving peaceful relations among peoples and nations. It is pointed out that many of the prejudices and distrusts between nations grow from the treatment of the history of their relations in the schools, more than from present situations.

Attempts to change that usually draw immediate criticism on the ground that history is to be distorted and the glorious past of the nation besmirched. Yet prejudices which grow from textbooks come not so much from what is said about one's own nation as from what is said about others. It has been a common point of historic and descriptive writings in all nations that in discussing other lands and peoples the tendency is to make the most of differences, of backwardness or quaintness, and of the record of wars, and to lose sight of the similarities, small contributions to the common good, and efforts at understanding. "War makes rattling good history, but Peace is poor reading," observed Thomas Hardy, and he seems not to have been alone in his thought.

We can readily recognize that it is wrong to distort history with the deliberate aim of making the historian's nation always appear in a good light, to the disadvantage of others. It would be equally wrong to falsify history to wipe out or gloss over the enmities of the past, since knowledge of them is necessary to an understanding of the present. The teaching of history and geography ought to be factual, and free from the discoloration of emotions, either personal or national, as nearly as human frailty permits.

PEANUT TROUBLES

A PROJECT to grow peanuts in Africa has brought much harassment to the Labor government in Great Britain. The cost of the project has greatly exceeded original estimates and the results have been distressingly less than expected. Now the government has narrowly escaped a defeat in the delicately balanced Parliament on a move to reduce the appropriation by a token sum of five pounds.

This has the look of a shrewd move in the Conservative plan to keep the government in a state of tension. Some Laborites were called from dinner parties to vote, and must have been ruffled at explaining to their hosts that they thereby saved five pounds' worth of peanuts.

These Days

My Dear Senator Tydings:

I took considerable time and care to read your report on the Communists in the State Department. It is an unfortunate report and will plague you all the days of your life, particularly as you issued it when our boys are being killed in Korea because of the errors made by those who conducted our foreign policy and whom you were supposed to investigate.

It is a pity that you lent yourself to such a small business. You may hurt Joe McCarthy but you cannot silence the conscience of America which is crying:

"Why did it happen? How could it have happened? Who arranged things in such a way that five years after a war is over, our sons are again dying in the malarial marshes of Asia?

Say what you will about McCarthy, we are actually being forced to fight in Korea, to mobilize for war, to set up priorities, to call up the Reserves, to spend our billions and to expend our sons.

Someone betrayed us. Someone is to blame. The resolution appointing your committee instructed you to find out who is to blame. That you did not even try to do.

I note in your report that you say some very nasty things about two fine Americans, Isaac Don Levine and Ralph deToledano. Let me quote you:

"It is also clear to us that Larsen was not the author of the quoted sections of the article, but that the allegations were made by Isaac Don Levine, and, as will appear later, possibly by Ralph deToledano. The fact that these persons have been reported to us as professional "anti-Communists," whose incomes and reputation depend on the developing and maintaining of new Communist fears."

As far back as 1917, Levine wrote a book on the Russian revolution which still stands up for its excellence. He has since 1917 opposed Communism in all its manifestations. He is no convert from Marx to whatever may be popular and profitable. He has always fought this evil and at great personal sacrifice.

There has been no profit for anyone in fighting the Communists. The profit has been all the other way. For years, anyone who fought the Communists was smeared as a Fascist. Such a writer found himself boycotted in Hollywood; the leftwing magazine editors killed his manuscripts; conservative editors felt that he was running counter to the times.

Yet, Levine continued patiently to build a case against the enemies of our country. He brought General Krivitsky's data to the fore. He was responsible for bringing Whittaker Chamber's accusations to Adolph A. Berle Jr. in the State Department and to the White House in 1939. That should have stopped Alger Hiss in his tracks, but Hiss was protected and Levine was smeared.

Early Diagnosis Important Here

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

PILONIDAL disease is a term applied to a disorder which, though it occurs most frequently in young men of 20 to 25 years, is by no means rare in women. In this condition, there are cavities or spaces in the tissue over the lower part of the spine from which a passageway, known as a sinus, leads to the outside.

The exact cause of this condition is not known but its basic structure is thought to be inborn. Since it usually seems to become actively troublesome only in adult life, it is thought that the sex glands may provide the stimulus which sets it off.

Not Difficult to Diagnose

The condition is not a difficult one to diagnose. The symptoms are practically continuous and vary with the age of the patient. The younger the patient, the shorter the duration of the symptoms. There is usually pain in the affected region, together with some discharge of pus material due to infection of the cavity. The discharge is usually thin and colorless. In some cases there may be fever and chills. Abscesses often form in the affected area.

Unfortunately, the treatment for this disorder is not entirely satisfactory. The earlier the condition is diagnosed and the treatment carried out, the simpler is the operation required and the greater the chances of cure.

If there is an acute infection of the area present, the infected material must be drained out and the infection cleared up before further operative procedures are used.

In the Area

In one operation used, a cut is made in the area directly over the center of the cavity. The infected material is removed from the cavity and a tube inserted. Then the patient is instructed to take hot baths twice daily until the discharge decreases. At the end of a week, the tube is cut off so that the end of it is flush with the skin. The patient then gets no further dressings or treatment for a month. At this time, the tube is again cut off and, about three months later, in most cases, the tube is removed completely.

Attempts to eliminate all of the diseased tissue by means of the electric cautery have also been utilized.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. E. R.: Why should I constantly have tartar on my teeth?

Answer: The cause of the excessive accumulation of tartar on the teeth is not known. It is true that some persons have more tartar than others. There is no treatment of which I am aware, other than to have the tartar removed by your dentist at three-month intervals.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

IVES AND BENEDICT jogged their horses and moved wastward. They came within the hour to Lund's place, and the ground was black where the fire had burned itself out last night, and there were not so many men about, though some had remained. They stood in the yard; they sat upon chopping blocks; they leaned against the corral. None of them had slept, Ives supposed, and fatigue gave them an added sullenness. They showed interest as the pair rode up, but there was no wild excitement. They moved slowly toward the two horsemen, and Ives said wearily, not lifting his voice, "Here's your badge-toter."

Elisha Lund came to the door of his shack. He had his look and raised one huge hand and let it drop, and he smiled then, but it was a melancholy smile.

Ives said, "I fetched him, Lund."

Tana appeared behind Lund. She looked handsome; she held to her steady serenity, but her eyes were glad. Benedict looked hard at her and stepped down from the saddle and crossed half the distance to her and stopped then as though he had run against an invisible barrier. He said, "Doc told me, Tana," and stood waiting, and Ives thought: If she'd only smile—if she'd only say one word to him! But all the life seemed to go out of Tana; she placed a shoulder against the door jamb and said in a small voice, "I'll be getting back to Hammer."

Benedict said desperately, "I'd like to ride back with you."

For a moment Ives' sympathy was so strong it choked him, but he knew that Benedict's desire could be the undoing of all of them and he said sharply, "How much prodding do you think the colonel will stand?"

Benedict looked like a man with a bullet in him who was trying to carry the weight of that lead and stay on his feet, and it took him a moment to speak. He said then, "You're right, Doc. You'd better be the one who takes her through the gate."

"No," Ives said. "I'll never ride through that gate again."

Benedict jerked. "I really am beholden!"

Ives shook his head. "I don't want you packing that notion. You were only a small part of it, Rod." He looked at Tana. "The colonel talked to me. He spoke of Texas and the trail north. He spoke of Dodge City."

Tana stood now with all the serenity shaken out of her, and she said, "Brian—!" and her voice was stricken.

He said, "Nothing's changed for us, Tana," and he was remembering her hands beating against his chest, pushing him away from her. "It's just that we both know now."

He looked at Elisha Lund. "You'd better be the one to take her to Hammer."

Lund had frowned his perplexity, but he asked no questions, and Ives was grateful for that. Lund said, "I'll hitch up the wagon. She can tie her horse on behind." He lifted a huge hand again; there was welcome in the gesture. "You ain't had no breakfast yet."

Ives said, "All I want to do is sleep for a million years."

He stepped down from the saddle and one of the farmers moved forward and took the horse's trailing reins. It was Jorgensen; thus did Jorgensen acknowledge a bargain fulfilled. Ives lurched toward the shack, feeling done in; and Lund stepped aside to let him pass, and Tana lowered her eyes. When he was inside the shack, she looked at him—she'd got hold of herself again—and she said, "Good-bye, Brian," and he felt then that he would never see her again.

He said, "Good-bye, Tana," and seated himself upon a chair and began tugging at his boots, being very deliberate about it, being brutal. This was how he shut her out, and it had to be like this, quick and final for both of them. She moved out of the door and he sat holding a boot in his hand till Elisha Lund said, "Yoost climb in the bunk and snooze all you want. I'll be back soon."

Ives said, "Get her there as fast as you can. The colonel's got a right to be edgy till she shows up."

He looked about him. This shack was partitioned into two rooms and this one was the living room, he supposed, though it had a bunk built into one corner, and that made it a bedroom, too. A centering table held a huge Bible with a silver clasp and also a vase in which flowers had withered. The windows were brightly curtained; he recognized the feminine touch in flowers and curtains and remembered that Marybelle had spoken of her mother, but now he judged that Elisha Lund's wife was dead. Those withered flowers told him; there'd been no woman here these last couple of days to keep them watered.

He got off his other boot and stripped himself of his gun-belt and looked for a place to hang it. A curtained doorway gave off this room; he swept the curtain aside and peered into a lean-to tacked onto the back of the shack, making a third room. Here was a small iron bed; it was darker in the lean-to, and he stepped inside and laid his gun-belt upon a chair and set the boots on the floor and fell into the little bed.

He lay, his body slowly relaxing, but there was still too much tension in him for sleep to come. After a while he heard a wagon creaking in the yard; that would be Lund and Tana starting out for Hammer, he decided. He wondered about Marco Stoll; Stoll had headed this way last night, but he hadn't seen the man about and he hadn't thought to ask.

Benedict came into the shack. He said in a soft voice, "Doo—?" Ives muttered, and Benedict said, "I'm getting on into town. Maw will be worried. I'll see you later, Doc. And I'll keep an eye peeled for Brule, meanwhile."

Ives muttered again, feeling too drowsy to want to make real talk. Benedict left the shack; Ives heard his boots beat against the hard-packed earth beyond the doorway until the sound diminished and was lost. He felt sorry for Benedict, remembering Benedict's reaching out toward Tana today and Tana's rearing that invisible wall between them; and his thought was that both himself and Benedict had come against such a wall, he because of Dodge City and something that had happened twenty-three years ago, Benedict because there were two breeds of men on this range and no peace between the old and the new.

Thinking this, he fell asleep.

He awoke with that strange sensation that comes to a man who has turned day into night; he awoke not realizing his whereabouts at once and wondering whether it was morning and feeling altogether topsy-turvy. Someone had pulled a chair beside the bed and was sitting there; it was Marybelle. She smiled at him in the dimness of this lean-to.

"That's my bed you've been sleeping in, Doc," she said.

She leaned over him, still smiling; it was good to find her here. She was someone circumstance had brought close to him since he'd come back to this range; her presence took the edge from his lost feeling. He reached for her, and his arm went around her and he drew her to him. Her lips came to his with no evasion; he had never imagined what her kiss would be like, but it held coolness and comfort and belied the sensual roguishness her lips had suggested. He held her thus for a long moment and then she gently removed herself from his arms. She was shaken; he could tell that; he had never known another time when she wasn't in complete command of herself.

She said, "Doc, that wasn't exactly fair."

He said, "Then I'm sorry. You came close to me just once too often."

She shook her head. "I'm the one who was cheated. There's always a time when a man doesn't stand a chance. I've sat here by the bed waiting for that time."

She stood up. She laughed gaily. "You'll want something to eat. I'll get it for you."

NEW YORK—For the first time, it is summer. You enter the park that is Central from the Columbus Circle side, and once again, as it can be so often in so many different sections of New York, it is like stepping into another world.

The roar of the city fades suddenly away, as if you had gone into a soundproofed room. To the south, the skyscrapers still loom gray and hazy in the sun, but they look like what the movie people call a process shot—a fake background against which the action takes place.

Here in the park, as you come into it, are greenery and laziness and people sitting on benches. They have ducked out of the furore momentarily, like a cat sneaking away from a group catfight and sitting on its haunches a few feet away, meditating.

The automobile tires make their sticky slapping sound on the tar road winding by, but otherwise there is no noise as you walk. As you go deeper into the beat-up old park, you see men and women sprawled on the grass in all kinds of positions, like tossed-away rag dolls.

A few are what we might call Respectable Citizens, but a great many more are the defeated ones, the bums. They have their shoes off and they lie asleep on the greensward in the sun, like so many toms that have prowled the night through and now enjoy the rest of the sinful.

One man sits in his undershirt on a bench and holds his head rigidly and awkwardly so his face is in line with the rays of the sun. He will have a Florida tan or, by gosh, he will know the reason why.

Try, Stop Me

In the heyday of the Klondike gold rush, one of the most accomplished and unscrupulous gamblers who made his headquarters in Skagway was named Soapy Smith. Smith hung a sign outside his honky-tonk proclaiming "telegraph office." Homesick miners paid anywhere from five to fifty dollars apiece to send wires to their loved ones. With speed that would have seemed suspicious to wiser heads, replies came back—collect—assuring the poor fish that the loved ones missed them about two hundred words' worth. The fact of the matter was that there was no telegraph wire within a hundred miles of Skagway. Soapy composed the telegrams himself.

According to Alva Johnston, the young minister of Skagway sought funds to erect a log church. Soapy Smith contributed a thousand dollars and urged fellow-townsmen to do likewise. When the gratified clergyman had run his funds up to thirty-six thousand dollars, Soapy's gang stole it all from him. Said Soapy's friend, Wilson Mizner, complacently, "Thirty-six for one is darn good odds."

Johnston will incorporate these and other Soapy Smith legends in a book he is preparing on the life of Wilson Mizner and his Klondike cronies.

Uncle Sam Says Woman's Job During Korean Crisis Is Right In Her Home

No Draft In Prospect

Top government officials in the nation's capital agree that woman's war job is in the home during tne Korean crisis — provided she conserves fuel while keeping the home fires burning.

Uncle Sam says American women can do their most effective war job right now in their traditional role of preserving a business-as-usual policy in the face of adversity.

The outlook for women for the duration of the Korean war shapes up about like this:

1. There is no draft or mobilization of women in prospect.

2. The Army, Navy, Marines and Airforce need at the moment nurses and trained hospital personnel. They will ask for other women volunteers as needed.

3. On the positive side, the government wants women to stop hoarding and to talk their girl friends out of hoarding. This is a vital job for women because the President has warned the nation that if the present sporadic hoarding spreads, he will invoke price controls and rationing.

4. The government wants women to start conserving fuels immediately. Electricity, gas and oil are now in plentful supply, but there may be rationing if shortages develop.

5. Women drivers ought to think twice when they climb into the family car for a brief spin. Gas rationing is a definite possibility if new emergencies arise and gas gets short.

Officials' general advice to women is to go right on doing what they are doing in a sane and level-headed way.

The armed forces, at the present time, have no particular need of WAVES, WAFS, WACS or Marines. If the situation demands it, they will ask for volunteers.

There is no intention right now of attempting to draft women or initate a general moblization of women.

The top men in government feel that the average woman can best do her part in backing up the line by being careful to conserve all potentially scarce commodities right in the home.

The conservation of commodities the family uses—food, clothing, fuel—is considered one of the most important jobs that women can do. If the emergency continues there will be a call for stricter conservation and possibly rationing.

In general, women, Uncle Sam wants you to stay on the job.

Uncle Sam Says Woman's Job During Korean Crisis Is Right In Her Home

No Draft In Prospect

Top government officials in the nation's capital agree that woman's war job is in the home during tne Korean crisis — provided she conserves fuel while keeping the home fires burning.

Uncle Sam says American women can do their most effective war job right now in their traditional role of preserving a business-as-usual policy in the face of adversity.

The outlook for women for the duration of the Korean war shapes up about like this:

1. There is no draft or mobilization of women in prospect.

2. The Army, Navy, Marines and Airforce need at the moment nurses and trained hospital personnel. They will ask for other women volunteers as needed.

3. On the positive side, the government wants women to stop hoarding and to talk their girl friends out of hoarding. This is a vital job for women because the President has warned the nation that if the present sporadic hoarding spreads, he will invoke price controls and rationing.

4. The government wants women to start conserving fuels immediately. Electricity, gas and oil are now in plentful supply, but there may be rationing if shortages develop.

5. Women drivers ought to think twice when they climb into the family car for a brief spin. Gas rationing is a definite possibility if new emergencies arise and gas gets short.

Officials' general advice to women is to go right on doing what they are doing in a sane and level-headed way.

The armed forces, at the present time, have no particular need of WAVES, WAFS, WACS or Marines. If the situation demands it, they will ask for volunteers.

There is no intention right now of attempting to draft women or initate a general moblization of women.

The top men in government feel that the average woman can best do her part in backing up the line by being careful to conserve all potentially scarce commodities right in the home.

The conservation of commodities the family uses—food, clothing, fuel—is considered one of the most important jobs that women can do. If the emergency continues there will be a call for stricter conservation and possibly rationing.

In general, women, Uncle Sam wants you to stay on the job.

LONDONERS 'FRIENDLY'

Work Camp Experiences Reported By Student

A Pickaway County theological student sailed last month for England for duty in an interdenominational work camp.

He is Jack W. Hedges, student in Garret Biblical Institute, ordained deacon in Methodist church and son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hedges of Washington Township.

The English work camp is an international and interdenominational affair sponsored by Friends church.

Hedges sailed after a week of intensive training in Pendell Hill, Pa. In a letter to his parents he wrote:

"I am to go directly to Leeds and work on a park and playground that is being built in a slum clearance area. On August 12 I will go to Lincoln to a harvest camp for the remainder of the Summer."

* * *

THE WORK camps are attended by student groups from all over the world. Each camp, with a membership of about 30 students, has a building project. In some camps a war-torn school or church is rebuilt or repaired. In others a playground is set up.

Hedges had been to Europe once before—on a livestock ship, tending horses. On his recent trip, aboard the S.S. Washington, he wrote:

"This boat has an overabundance of young, beautiful women who sun themselves all over the decks every day. They make walking difficult but Oh, so pleasant. Again I say, a horse boat was never like this."

When Hedges decided to hunt up the John Wesley relics, he had a difficult time of it. He asked several people where to go and reports, "they had never heard of the chap."

Hedges found Londoners the "friendliest of folk," who were anxious to direct and assist a stranger.

In Leeds the boys dormitory looked like an old abandoned church. A new arrival, Hedges found the canvas cots all occupied. He spent his first night on the floor.

Judging from Hedges letters "work" camps are correctly named. At the end of his first day he wrote, "I am so tired I can hardly see straight. I am finding muscles I didn't even know I had. They aren't useful, but they certainly do get sore."

REPORTING on the work camp daily schedule, Hedges said, "Breakfast at 6:30 a. m. Catch the bus at 7:30, start shoveling at 8. At 10:30 a. m. we have a 15 minute break for coffee, lunch at 12:15, another break for tea at 2:30 p. m. and quit at 4 p. m. We take a bath each evening in the public baths. They are quite nice with lots of nice hot water. Supper is at 6 p. m. There is some sort of meeting every evening. We try to get to bed by 10:30 p. m. Even the floor feels good."

Of his fellow workers Hedges reports, "There are such an interesting lot of kids here now, five Britons, five Scandanavians, one Finn, one Greek, one Indian, two Germans, two Swiss, one Canadian and two Americans.

Of the city of Leeds Hedges says "There is nothing here visitors from foreign countries would want to see. It is the dirtiest, ugliest city I have ever seen. The streets, buildings and kids are dirty. Everything you touch is dirty. Trees and grass are found only in parks. The city is a textile and coal city. I have never seen so many, dwarfed, crippled and blighted people."

OF THE Korean trouble Hedges wrote, "It is hard to get these kids to express their feelings about the war. As near as I can judge they seem to have the feeling that it is an affair in which the U. S. has stuck her neck out, and now let her settle it. They really are not very concerned. It is a strange feeling to be out of your home county at a time like this. You feel a loyalty and anxiety for your country, and the people around you seem to have no concern."

Work camps have been established all over Europe where there is a need for them. They are international and interdenominational. The camp where Hedges is located was sponsored by Friends church.

Workers are paid prevailing wages of the locality in which they work. At the end of the Summer, however, they turn their wages over to European relief organizations.

Miami Beach Bookie Combine Claimed Folded

MIAMI, July 27—The S. and G. Syndicate, which reputedly ran Miami Beach bookmaking activities with an iron hand for eight years, is out of business.

No sooner did S. and G. Attorney Ben Cohen announce the collapse yesterday than speculation began concerning possible heirs to the lucrative Miami Beach gambling rackets.

Miami Daily News Staff Writer Don Petiti said there will be no "mad scramble" to take over the field. He quoted a gambler as saying, "only a sucker would believe the outfit is giving up."

Petit said the "grapevine" has it the syndicate's "five members will organize five separate companies this Fall and the spots they controlled as a body will be divided equally."

However, Wilson McGee, of the Miami Herald, forecast a fight for the bookie business.

He first reported the combine's end. McGee wrote in yesterday's Herald that "word leaked out late Tuesday that (the syndicate) had ordered telephones removed from all of its eight offices."

Supervisory employes are providing a steady flow of gas to homes in Lake and Ashtabula Counties, Kirp said. The 2,500 workers have been on strike for the last six days.

INS Reporter Said Captured By Communists

TOKYO, July 27—Front reports from Korea said today that International News Service War Correspondent Philip Deane has been captured by Communist troops.

There was no official confirmation of the reports, but Deane has failed to file any front dispatches for several days.

That in itself is not unusual because the 27-year-old combat writer often has gone far into the front lines to collect material before jeeping back to communication centers where he could file his graphic reports.

Deane was reported wounded several times before being captured. He was wounded previously in the shoulder during the fighting at Taejon, but returned to the front after treatment.

His reported capture follows the death in action of another International News Service war correspondent, Ray Richards. Richards was killed by the enemy above the Kum river before the retreat southward to Taejon. Killed with Richards was Ernie Peeler, Stars and Stripes reporter.

Deane reported earlier this week that he was returning soon to Tokyo for a brief rest, but the front reports quoted an escaped American prisoner as saying he saw Deane in a prison stockade Tuesday.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY:
State Tries to Force "Monsters" Off Highways

PITTSBURGH PRESS: We have been reading some advertisements in behalf of the trucking industry.

They point out how every sort of business has come to depend on trucks—how they are the good friends and servants of every consumer.

That's true.

But don't be fooled. Most of the trucks now in use are in the light or medium or semi-heavy class. They are not the type which destroys the highways, obstruct the road and make driving almost intolerable.

The trucks which are causing the damage are the monsters—the so-called "box car trucks." What Pennsylvania, and every other state, is up against is an effort to put freight trains on highways. With the taxpayers providing the right of way—not the railroads, as happens when freight cars are kept on rails.

Are the Truck Lines Paying Their Share?

If the big trucks are responsible for 16 per cent of the cost—and that only—they still aren't paying their proper share in Colorado. If they are responsible for 55 per cent as California says, they are getting away with murder—even without estimating the difference in highway upkeep costs caused by these vehicles.

In a survey made in 1948, the California state highway engineer found that on 105 specific highway projects, built within a specific period, heavy vehicles were responsible for 55 per cent of the total cost. Because big trucks were to use these highways, it cost 16 per cent more to build them than if light vehicles only would use them. Distegarding this factor, the big trucks were responsible for 45 per cent of highway use on a ton-mile basis.

This survey has been discounted by engineers of the bureau of public roads, who say it is unfair to include both these factors. That is another point, however, and one that is highly arguable.

In Colorado, last year, the state highway department had a budget of 24 and one-fourth million dollars.

According to a statement made by the Railroads of North Carolina in the Thursday's issue of the Courier-Times, the "big trucks" pay only a small share of their part in the expenditures by the States on roads and highways each year. LONDONERS 'FRIENDLY'

Work Camp Experiences Reported By Student

A Pickaway County theological student sailed last month for England for duty in an interdenominational work camp.

He is Jack W. Hedges, student in Garret Biblical Institute, ordained deacon in Methodist church and son of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hedges of Washington Township.

The English work camp is an international and interdenominational affair sponsored by Friends church.

Hedges sailed after a week of intensive training in Pendell Hill, Pa. In a letter to his parents he wrote:

"I am to go directly to Leeds and work on a park and playground that is being built in a slum clearance area. On August 12 I will go to Lincoln to a harvest camp for the remainder of the Summer."

* * *

THE WORK camps are attended by student groups from all over the world. Each camp, with a membership of about 30 students, has a building project. In some camps a war-torn school or church is rebuilt or repaired. In others a playground is set up.

Hedges had been to Europe once before—on a livestock ship, tending horses. On his recent trip, aboard the S.S. Washington, he wrote:

"This boat has an overabundance of young, beautiful women who sun themselves all over the decks every day. They make walking difficult but Oh, so pleasant. Again I say, a horse boat was never like this."

When Hedges decided to hunt up the John Wesley relics, he had a difficult time of it. He asked several people where to go and reports, "they had never heard of the chap."

Hedges found Londoners the "friendliest of folk," who were anxious to direct and assist a stranger.

In Leeds the boys dormitory looked like an old abandoned church. A new arrival, Hedges found the canvas cots all occupied. He spent his first night on the floor.

Judging from Hedges letters "work" camps are correctly named. At the end of his first day he wrote, "I am so tired I can hardly see straight. I am finding muscles I didn't even know I had. They aren't useful, but they certainly do get sore."

REPORTING on the work camp daily schedule, Hedges said, "Breakfast at 6:30 a. m. Catch the bus at 7:30, start shoveling at 8. At 10:30 a. m. we have a 15 minute break for coffee, lunch at 12:15, another break for tea at 2:30 p. m. and quit at 4 p. m. We take a bath each evening in the public baths. They are quite nice with lots of nice hot water. Supper is at 6 p. m. There is some sort of meeting every evening. We try to get to bed by 10:30 p. m. Even the floor feels good."

Of his fellow workers Hedges reports, "There are such an interesting lot of kids here now, five Britons, five Scandanavians, one Finn, one Greek, one Indian, two Germans, two Swiss, one Canadian and two Americans.

Of the city of Leeds Hedges says "There is nothing here visitors from foreign countries would want to see. It is the dirtiest, ugliest city I have ever seen. The streets, buildings and kids are dirty. Everything you touch is dirty. Trees and grass are found only in parks. The city is a textile and coal city. I have never seen so many, dwarfed, crippled and blighted people."

OF THE Korean trouble Hedges wrote, "It is hard to get these kids to express their feelings about the war. As near as I can judge they seem to have the feeling that it is an affair in which the U. S. has stuck her neck out, and now let her settle it. They really are not very concerned. It is a strange feeling to be out of your home county at a time like this. You feel a loyalty and anxiety for your country, and the people around you seem to have no concern."

Work camps have been established all over Europe where there is a need for them. They are international and interdenominational. The camp where Hedges is located was sponsored by Friends church.

Workers are paid prevailing wages of the locality in which they work. At the end of the Summer, however, they turn their wages over to European relief organizations.

GOOD ROUGHAGE ASSURED

Reed Canary Grass Cited For Swampy Spot Pasture

CHICAGO, July 27—Swampy, low spots can be turned into money-making pasture by seeding Reed canary grass This summer.

Reed canary grass can make a hay or pasture crop where other less adapted grass varieties would be a failure, according to the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

With Reed canary grass, reserves of good quality roughage can be built up that beef and dairy cattle will readily accept.

Best time for seeding is early in August.

Ohio State university agronomists recommend a seeding rate of four to six pounds per acre. On fields that overflow but don't pond for long periods, three pounds per acre of birdsfoot trefoil may be added to the grass seeding to improve the quality of the pasture.

THE RESEARCH men say that before seeding, the land should be heavily disced to kill weeds They recommend working ground limestone into seedbeds made on swampy land. The crop can be seeded through the grass box of a grain drill, or it can be broadcast and cultipacked. Seed depth should not exceed one inch.

Plenty of phosphate-potash fertilizer added at seeding time will help produce bigger yields of pasture and hay, the committee points out. The plant food will more than pay for itself in extra feed and in improved quality of the grass for grazing.

Pope Issues 'Greatest Pain' Statement, Abhorring War Need

CASTEL GANDOLFO, July 27—Pope Pius XII has issued an encyclical letter appealing to all citizens and their governments for "true peace and concord."

The pontiff entitled his letter "Summi Maeroris" (meaning "Greatest pain") and asked that all persons remember "what results war brings." He continued:

"Unfortunately we have had experience—it is ruins, death and misery, nothing else.

"Technical progress has introduced such murderous and inhuman weapons which can exterminate not only armies, navies, cities, villages, art and religious treasures, but even innocent children and mothers, the ill, the defenseless and the aged. All beauty produced by human genius can be annihilated.

"If war today above all presents itself as terrifyingly lethal, it is to be hoped that through the efforts of all and especially the rulers, that the menacing clouds will be banished."

• • •

THE POPE assailed the Communist Stockholm "peace appeal" without mentioning it specifically when he said:

"In many countries, persons write on and discuss how peace may be achieved.

"But falsehood, not truth is presented. Hate and rivalry are favored, not love and charity. Concord is not exalted, but disturbances and disorders are provoked."

Pope Pius also underscored the denial of religious liberty behind the Iron Curtain by urging the Catholic hierarchy to persevere. He added:

"How distant from true peace are those who trample on the sacrosanct rights of the Catholic church, forbidding its priests to exercise their faith, imprisoning and exiling them."

The pontiff concluded by asking for a new peace prayer crusade.

He said: "We recall that in ancient times and in times closer to us, there were those who would subjugate people with arms. But we have never desisted from championing true peace—not with arms but with truth can peoples be conquered and educated to civil living."

GOOD ROUGHAGE ASSURED

Reed Canary Grass Cited For Swampy Spot Pasture

CHICAGO, July 27—Swampy, low spots can be turned into money-making pasture by seeding Reed canary grass This summer.

Reed canary grass can make a hay or pasture crop where other less adapted grass varieties would be a failure, according to the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

With Reed canary grass, reserves of good quality roughage can be built up that beef and dairy cattle will readily accept.

Best time for seeding is early in August.

Ohio State university agronomists recommend a seeding rate of four to six pounds per acre. On fields that overflow but don't pond for long periods, three pounds per acre of birdsfoot trefoil may be added to the grass seeding to improve the quality of the pasture.

THE RESEARCH men say that before seeding, the land should be heavily disced to kill weeds They recommend working ground limestone into seedbeds made on swampy land. The crop can be seeded through the grass box of a grain drill, or it can be broadcast and cultipacked. Seed depth should not exceed one inch.

Plenty of phosphate-potash fertilizer added at seeding time will help produce bigger yields of pasture and hay, the committee points out. The plant food will more than pay for itself in extra feed and in improved quality of the grass for grazing.

Pope Issues 'Greatest Pain' Statement, Abhorring War Need

CASTEL GANDOLFO, July 27—Pope Pius XII has issued an encyclical letter appealing to all citizens and their governments for "true peace and concord."

The pontiff entitled his letter "Summi Maeroris" (meaning "Greatest pain") and asked that all persons remember "what results war brings." He continued:

"Unfortunately we have had experience—it is ruins, death and misery, nothing else.

"Technical progress has introduced such murderous and inhuman weapons which can exterminate not only armies, navies, cities, villages, art and religious treasures, but even innocent children and mothers, the ill, the defenseless and the aged. All beauty produced by human genius can be annihilated.

"If war today above all presents itself as terrifyingly lethal, it is to be hoped that through the efforts of all and especially the rulers, that the menacing clouds will be banished."

• • •

THE POPE assailed the Communist Stockholm "peace appeal" without mentioning it specifically when he said:

"In many countries, persons write on and discuss how peace may be achieved.

"But falsehood, not truth is presented. Hate and rivalry are favored, not love and charity. Concord is not exalted, but disturbances and disorders are provoked."

Pope Pius also underscored the denial of religious liberty behind the Iron Curtain by urging the Catholic hierarchy to persevere. He added:

"How distant from true peace are those who trample on the sacrosanct rights of the Catholic church, forbidding its priests to exercise their faith, imprisoning and exiling them."

The pontiff concluded by asking for a new peace prayer crusade.

He said: "We recall that in ancient times and in times closer to us, there were those who would subjugate people with arms. But we have never desisted from championing true peace—not with arms but with truth can peoples be conquered and educated to civil living."

The train is expected to reach North Korea in three weeks after journeying through Russia, Siberia and Manchuria.

TRAINING DUE IN FALL

Walnut, Ashville Schools Plan Auto-Driving Class

Ashville and Walnut Township high school juniors and seniors will be able to enroll in driver training courses this Fall.

Superintendents Walter Harris of Ashville and Alfred Axe of Walnut recently completed a 44-hour intensified course in driver education in the University of Cincinnati.

The two superintendents plan to add the driver training courses to their schools' curriculums and to take over instruction of the courses personally.

Purpose of the high school driver training course, defined by the two school heads, is to teach young people proper attitudes toward driving, cause and prevention of accidents, motor laws of the state, how an auto is operated and how to drive an auto.

First part of the course will be a 36-hour study of related material such as laws, accident prevention and proper attitudes.

Second half of the program will consist of 24 hours training in an auto, although only six of the hours will be behind-the-wheel training. Youngsters enrolled in the course must have a learners' permit before entering the final phase of the course.

Boys and girls who complete the seme- - course will receive one-half unit credit for the work, along with a certificate of proficiency upon completing the work.

The superintendents pointed out that holders of the proficiency certificates will, in most cases, be able to obtain drivers' licenses without further examinations and may receive a reduction in insurance premiums on the family car if there are no other drivers younger than 25 years in the family.

Dual-control autos equipped with standard gear shifts are to be furnished to the schools by dealers in the communities.

Surplus Supply Of Sugar Seen, Hoarders Told

WASHINGTON, July 27—Government sugar specialists remind housewives today that hoarded sugar does not improve with age and in fact becomes less useful because it hardens.

This information comes during a run on sugar which has caused unnecessary temporary "spot" shortages throughout the country. Unnecessary, the federal officials say, because there is no overall shortage of sugar.

Without this heavy overbuying, sugar supplies are more than ample for the nation's needs, the government maintains and with sound reasoning.

Cuba still ha- 400,000 tons in U. S. reserve. Hawaii and Puerto Rico also have larger supplies than estimated U. S. needs. The domestic sugar beet crop may approach record-size this Fall.

Retail grocers the country over report that sugar demand has tripled in recent weeks. Many housewives have been buying extra for preserving as usual at this season, but current demand is far beyond normal and heavy runs on sugar are reported from large cities where few women do canning.

TRAINING DUE IN FALL

Walnut, Ashville Schools Plan Auto-Driving Class

Ashville and Walnut Township high school juniors and seniors will be able to enroll in driver training courses this Fall.

Superintendents Walter Harris of Ashville and Alfred Axe of Walnut recently completed a 44-hour intensified course in driver education in the University of Cincinnati.

The two superintendents plan to add the driver training courses to their schools' curriculums and to take over instruction of the courses personally.

Purpose of the high school driver training course, defined by the two school heads, is to teach young people proper attitudes toward driving, cause and prevention of accidents, motor laws of the state, how an auto is operated and how to drive an auto.

First part of the course will be a 36-hour study of related material such as laws, accident prevention and proper attitudes.

Second half of the program will consist of 24 hours training in an auto, although only six of the hours will be behind-the-wheel training. Youngsters enrolled in the course must have a learners' permit before entering the final phase of the course.

Boys and girls who complete the seme- - course will receive one-half unit credit for the work, along with a certificate of proficiency upon completing the work.

The superintendents pointed out that holders of the proficiency certificates will, in most cases, be able to obtain drivers' licenses without further examinations and may receive a reduction in insurance premiums on the family car if there are no other drivers younger than 25 years in the family.

Dual-control autos equipped with standard gear shifts are to be furnished to the schools by dealers in the communities.

Surplus Supply Of Sugar Seen, Hoarders Told

WASHINGTON, July 27—Government sugar specialists remind housewives today that hoarded sugar does not improve with age and in fact becomes less useful because it hardens.

This information comes during a run on sugar which has caused unnecessary temporary "spot" shortages throughout the country. Unnecessary, the federal officials say, because there is no overall shortage of sugar.

Without this heavy overbuying, sugar supplies are more than ample for the nation's needs, the government maintains and with sound reasoning.

Cuba still ha- 400,000 tons in U. S. reserve. Hawaii and Puerto Rico also have larger supplies than estimated U. S. needs. The domestic sugar beet crop may approach record-size this Fall.

Retail grocers the country over report that sugar demand has tripled in recent weeks. Many housewives have been buying extra for preserving as usual at this season, but current demand is far beyond normal and heavy runs on sugar are reported from large cities where few women do canning.

Sohio, Shell Plan New Pipeline

CLEVELAND, July 27 — The Standard Oil Company of Ohio and the Shell Oil Company announced today the formation of the Essaness Corp.

The new corporation, owned and operated jointly by Shell and Sohio, was formed to expand the petroleum products pipeline transportation facilities of the two companies.

Essaness is scheduled to begin work next month on 57 miles of additional six-inch pipeline between Lima and Springfield at an estimated cost of $1.3 million.

No Gasoline Trouble Ahead

WASHINGTON, July 27 — The motorist may rest easy for the time being as far as quality and quantity of gasoline are concerned.

The National Petroleum Council says there will be "no change" in the gas supply situation as a result of the Korean emergency. The council is composed of oil industry leaders who advise the government.

Increasing signs that intensive guerrilla preparations over an extended period of time made possible the month-long Communist successes in South Korea are apparent in battlefront dispatches today.

It is quite clear that the North Koreans are able to attack almost incessantly and to absorb the enormous losses being inflicted by continuous air attack.

In addition, they seem to be able to restore bridges and damaged railway lines with terrific speed. These factors seem to add up to the following:

1—An almost inexhaustible reservoir of manpower and other reinforcements in the north.

2—A knowledge and application of military logistics for which few observers gave the North Koreans due credit.

3—Fuel and other supplies in abundance which may have been hidden away by Communist sympathizers in the south long before the invasion began.

There is a somewhat curious resemblance between the present situation in South Korea and the one that Adolf Hitler fondly hoped would prevail in his so-called Bavarian mountain "national redoubt" in the closing days of World War II.

PROPAGANDA minister Paul Joseph Goebbels spread the illusion that in this region an impenetrable natural fortress would ruin the Allies' victory.

The ridges and folds of the high mountains were supposed to have been crowded with strongly-armed fanatical young Nazi fighters who called themselves "werewolves."

There were tales of huge underground factories, of subterranean hangars for fighter-planes, of countless tons of munitions which could be brought to the surface with a flick of a switch, of scientifically mined roads, bridges and mountains which would explode in blasts of destruction at the appearance of an enemy.

Actually, the "werewolves" were skinny, frightened youths who broke and ran after firing a round or two. There were underground factories, long deserted and their supplies depleted.

And while minefields were a daily hazard, Gen. George S. Patton Jr. and the others detailed for the conquest of Bavaria went through with a speed and eclat that made military history.

So far as the eastern battlefront is concerned, there is no question that Communist agitators made a good deal of progress with South Koreans in pre-war days.

The republican government of President Syngman Rhee was pictured as corrupt and the Communists took every advantage to capitalize upon the poverty of the Korean as alleged proof that he was being victimized and exploited by an imperialistic regime.

It was not many days before the Americans in Korea found they had enemies at their backs as well as in front. The infiltration has increased and while U. S. troops are learning valuable tricks to mup up guerrilla elements, other problems are harder to solve.

QUITE OBVIOUSLY the North Koreans are not supplying their tanks and armored cars by air. Individual troops can be left to forage for food and water in the countryside. But armored vehicles need gasoline, oil and ammunition.

Where is this coming from to enable lightning enemy jabs in the far southwestern reaches of South Korea, where it is obvious that advance units must have run ahead of their normal supply lines?

The obvious conclusion is that weeks and perhaps months ago South Koreans recruited or subsidized to support the Communists, cached supplies for just this moment.

Certainly the hills, mountain ridges and caves of the area provide excellent cover, and experience has shown that it is possible for North Korean units virtually to drop from sight in some gully or crevice and then suddenly spring into action, presumably refueled and replenished with ammunition.

Hitler's "national redoubt" existed largely in a diseased mind and disordered imagination toward the end of his life. Whoever is running the enemy show in Korea seems to have found a workable counterpart.

Xenia Youth Runs Afoul Draft Ruling

DAYTON, July 27—Arthur Morgan II is a free man again today, but, as he told authorities, he'll probably be seeing them again.

Morgan, the grandson of a Former Antioch college president and TVA chairman, was ordered released yesterday by U. S. Commissioner Charles Ozias following completion of his involuntary draft registration.

The 18-year-old Yellow Springs youth was registered under a little used section of the 1948 Selective Service Act which permits a clerk to make a registration from information obtained in an interview or elsewhere. This permits registration when a man is unable or refuses to register.

Morgan was taken into custody Monday on a failure-to-register charge. He told newsmen that "my refusal to register is an expression of my objection to the draft law and what it stands for, a war measure."

However, he answered questions put by Elizabeth Hurley, clerk of his draft board in Xenia, when he was brought to the office of Assistant District Attorney James Rowe in Dayton.

Officials commented the youth may not be called up for a physical examination until he becomes 19 March 24, 1951. He will get another questionnaire then.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Take Your Choice

Sitting around last Friday evening, the talk turned to the best way of getting to sleep when it seems you just can't. "The way I always do," says Sandy Johnson, "is to breathe deep and make believe I weigh a ton."

"Just throw away the pillow—it works every time," says Buzz Ellis. When counting sheep came up, right away was the question: What kind of sheep?

From where I sit, you could argue 'til Doomsday and never get complete agreement on a lot of things. Now, take me. I'm all for having a glass of beer or ale on occasion. Your "sociable beverage" may be a "Coke"—or buttermilk or maybe a cup of hot coffee.

But enjoying our preferences is a right in this country and each of us is entitled to his own. The important thing is to respect that right in the true democratic spirit of understanding! As a matter of fact, what a tiresome old world this would be if we all did have the same likes and dislikes!

Xenia Youth Runs Afoul Draft Ruling

DAYTON, July 27—Arthur Morgan II is a free man again today, but, as he told authorities, he'll probably be seeing them again.

Morgan, the grandson of a Former Antioch college president and TVA chairman, was ordered released yesterday by U. S. Commissioner Charles Ozias following completion of his involuntary draft registration.

The 18-year-old Yellow Springs youth was registered under a little used section of the 1948 Selective Service Act which permits a clerk to make a registration from information obtained in an interview or elsewhere. This permits registration when a man is unable or refuses to register.

Morgan was taken into custody Monday on a failure-to-register charge. He told newsmen that "my refusal to register is an expression of my objection to the draft law and what it stands for, a war measure."

However, he answered questions put by Elizabeth Hurley, clerk of his draft board in Xenia, when he was brought to the office of Assistant District Attorney James Rowe in Dayton.

Officials commented the youth may not be called up for a physical examination until he becomes 19 March 24, 1951. He will get another questionnaire then.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Take Your Choice

Sitting around last Friday evening, the talk turned to the best way of getting to sleep when it seems you just can't. "The way I always do," says Sandy Johnson, "is to breathe deep and make believe I weigh a ton."

"Just throw away the pillow—it works every time," says Buzz Ellis. When counting sheep came up, right away was the question: What kind of sheep?

From where I sit, you could argue 'til Doomsday and never get complete agreement on a lot of things. Now, take me. I'm all for having a glass of beer or ale on occasion. Your "sociable beverage" may be a "Coke"—or buttermilk or maybe a cup of hot coffee.

But enjoying our preferences is a right in this country and each of us is entitled to his own. The important thing is to respect that right in the true democratic spirit of understanding! As a matter of fact, what a tiresome old world this would be if we all did have the same likes and dislikes!

Librarians Attend Conference

Localites Hear Outstanding Talks

Climaxing the annual conference of American Library Association held recently in Cleveland was a colorful pageant featuring the folk dancing of the many nationalities which make up the population of Cleveland.

Three thousand librarians attended the conference. From this locality were Mrs. Enid Denham, head of Pickaway District Public Library; Miss Katherine MacKinnon, Bookmobile librarian; and Miss Gretchen Moeller, librarian of Circleville high school.

The pageant included native dances in costume of Lithuanian groups, Ukranian, Negro, Czech, Slovak, Polish, Hungarian and Irish, all of whom live in Cleveland in great numbers retaining their language and tradition. The pageant was presented at the concluding general session.

Louis Bromfield was host to 250 librarians at his Malabar farm, where box lunches were served in the hay barn with hay bales for seats.

BROMFIELD LATER explained the work done at Malabar, the reclamation of the land through proper care of the natural resources, told of the history of Mohican Forest where the streams are so full of fish there is no limit to the catch allowed.

He also took the group to Jeese Hill to over look his property, to see the extent of the fertile valley, once "worn out" now fully productive with a drainage system costing $50 rather than the thousands laid out in tile.

"There is no need," he said, "to fear world starvation. Properly farmed, our land could produce enough to feed three times our present population. Our greatest hope lies in training our young farmers in the wisdom of the earth."

Previous to the general conferences were the workshops related to school work, audio visual aids, bookmobile work, demonstration programs, and public relations media. Mrs. Denham and Miss Moeller attended the pre-conference sessions.

Outstanding addresses were made by the librarian of Library of Congress, Luther Evans; Mrs. Ethel Gilbert, educational reconstruction officer of Unesco, just returned from a tour of Europe.

She said, "Do what you do not for little men or little women of tomorrow, but do it in the name of childhood, for here in America only, the twilight of childhood is not yet at hand."

Psychiatrist Says Epileptic Fails To Know Right

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, July 27—A second psychiatrist is to testify today in defense of 28-year-old Bellaire Cab Driver George E. Doty, on trial for his life for the June 16 slaying of Alma Montag, an 18-year-old farm girl.

Psychiatrist Frank N. Harris of Steubenville told the three-judge St. Clairsville court yesterday that Doty is an epileptic who "ordinarily does not know right from wrong."

Three court-appointed physicians agreed with Dr. Harris that Doty has a mental age of about nine, but they said he does know right from wrong.

Doty has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a charge that he beat the girl to death with a tree-limb during an attempted rape.

Dr. Harris said Doty has epileptic convulsions known as a "fugue stat" during which "people do not know what they want and do not know right from wrong."

He testified that Alma's threat to have Doty arrested when he tried to attack her could bring on an attack which would cause him to commit violence.

Teen Tips

Prom-time brought a flurry of questions from high school girls and boys about what's correct at dances Perhaps this one will help to make you a smoother, more popular partner:

"I have a problem which I know many other girls have, too," writes one. "After I finish dancing with a boy at our school dances and we stand there talking for a few minutes I don't know how to leave him or what to say.

"Also, after I finish dancing with a boy, and we're not talking and he says, 'Thank you' at the end of the dance, what should I say then? Would you please tell me what to say and do in both instances? I would appreciate it very much if you would answer me in your column."

Ans.—It's up to the boy to leave the girl at the end of the dance, not the girl. To avoid awkwardness or embarrassment it's best to return to the sidelines with your partner as soon as the dance is ended. It's perfectly OK for you, the girl, to start moving toward the edge of the dance floor and he'll follow. This leaves him free to excuse himself and look up his next partner if he wants to.

When a boy says "Thank you" at the end of a dance most girls reply, "It was fun." Some add, "Let's do it again some time!" to let the boy know they'll welcome another dance with him later.

For tips on personality perkups to help increase your fun and popularity, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.

Psychiatrist Says Epileptic Fails To Know Right

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, July 27—A second psychiatrist is to testify today in defense of 28-year-old Bellaire Cab Driver George E. Doty, on trial for his life for the June 16 slaying of Alma Montag, an 18-year-old farm girl.

Psychiatrist Frank N. Harris of Steubenville told the three-judge St. Clairsville court yesterday that Doty is an epileptic who "ordinarily does not know right from wrong."

Three court-appointed physicians agreed with Dr. Harris that Doty has a mental age of about nine, but they said he does know right from wrong.

Doty has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity to a charge that he beat the girl to death with a tree-limb during an attempted rape.

Dr. Harris said Doty has epileptic convulsions known as a "fugue stat" during which "people do not know what they want and do not know right from wrong."

He testified that Alma's threat to have Doty arrested when he tried to attack her could bring on an attack which would cause him to commit violence.

Teen Tips

Prom-time brought a flurry of questions from high school girls and boys about what's correct at dances Perhaps this one will help to make you a smoother, more popular partner:

"I have a problem which I know many other girls have, too," writes one. "After I finish dancing with a boy at our school dances and we stand there talking for a few minutes I don't know how to leave him or what to say.

"Also, after I finish dancing with a boy, and we're not talking and he says, 'Thank you' at the end of the dance, what should I say then? Would you please tell me what to say and do in both instances? I would appreciate it very much if you would answer me in your column."

Ans.—It's up to the boy to leave the girl at the end of the dance, not the girl. To avoid awkwardness or embarrassment it's best to return to the sidelines with your partner as soon as the dance is ended. It's perfectly OK for you, the girl, to start moving toward the edge of the dance floor and he'll follow. This leaves him free to excuse himself and look up his next partner if he wants to.

When a boy says "Thank you" at the end of a dance most girls reply, "It was fun." Some add, "Let's do it again some time!" to let the boy know they'll welcome another dance with him later.

For tips on personality perk-ups to help increase your fun and popularity, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Elinor Williams at this paper.

Lawyer Still Fights Decision

COLUMBUS, July 27—Thomas A. Joseph, Zanesville attorney convicted of perjury in connection with the Columbus "quickie divorce" cases, may carry his appeal to the supreme court.

Joseph lost again yesterday in his second district appellate court fight for a rehearing of his appeal. The court previously upheld his conviction of one charge of inducing a client to give a false Columbus address to get a "quickie" divorce.

Mother Of 9 Severely Beaten

CLEVELAND, July 27—A 57-year-old mother of nine children was severely beaten last night by two women wielding iron pipes.

Mrs. Rose Flora was attacked near her home on Cleveland's east side. She received a broken right arm and finger, plus gashes on her head and right leg.

Mrs. Flora said her assailants were a landlady and a roomer in a nearby home.

Relief Claims Shown To Be Declining Here

Since May claims for relief in Pickaway County's program of Aid for Dependent Children have dropped from 106 to 96, according to Mrs. Dorothy Downs, case worker.

Mrs. Downs said the funds for the program are supplied by federal, state and county governments. For the first quarter of 1950 federal funds totalled $9,730.03; state, $2,667.73; and county, $1 543.39.

Actually the county spent $562.92 less than the maximum required by law, which is one fourth the statutory millage, or $2,106.31, Mrs. Downs said.

She added that the state also paid less than the $3,626.02 maximum required under the law.

In the second quarter of 1950, however, Mrs. Downs said the county overspent $452.03. She explained that the county share for this period was $2,106.31, but the actual sum spent was $2,558.34. Federal share for the period was $11,491.44, and state, $4,467.72.

Lawyer Still Fights Decision

COLUMBUS, July 27—Thomas A. Joseph, Zanesville attorney convicted of perjury in connection with the Columbus "quickie divorce" cases, may carry his appeal to the supreme court.

Joseph lost again yesterday in his second district appellate court tight for a rehearing of his appeal. The court previously upheld his conviction of one charge of inducing a client to give a false Columbus address to get a "quickie" divorce.

Mother Of 9 Severely Beaten

CLEVELAND, July 27—A 57-year-old mother of nine children was severely beaten last night by two women wielding iron pipes.

Mrs. Rose Flora was attacked near her home on Cleveland's east side. She received a broken right arm and finger, plus gashes on her head and right leg.

Mrs. Flora said her assailants were a landlady and a roomer in a nearby home.

Relief Claims Shown To Be Declining Here

Since May claims for relief in Pickaway County's program of Aid for Dependent Children have dropped from 106 to 96, according to Mrs. Dorothy Downs, case worker.

Mrs. Downs said the funds for the program are supplied by federal, state and county governments. For the first quarter of 1950 federal funds totalled $9,730.03; state, $2,667.73; and county, $1 543.39.

Actually the county spent $562.92 less than the maximum required by law, which is one fourth the statutory millage, or $2,106.31, Mrs. Downs said.

She added that the state also paid less than the $3,626.02 maximum required under the law.

In the second quarter of 1950, however, Mrs. Downs said the county overspent $452.03. She explained that the county share for this period was $2,106.31, but the actual sum spent was $2,558.34. Federal share for the period was $11,491.44, and state, $4,467.72.

Movies take about one-fifth of the money spent for recreation in the United States.

Frisch Insists On Study Of Lousy Pitching

PHILADELPHIA, July 27—Let the catcalls fall where they may, Manager Frankie Frisch of the Chicago Cubs insists he will continue his noble experiment today to determine if his pitchers need a lantern to find the plate.

Frisch sat stolidly in the dugout in Shibe Park last night and watched Walt Dubiel throw away a 4-0 lead and walk six Phillies in the sixth inning.

The modern National League record for bases on balls by one pitcher in an inning is seven, set by Buck Ewing of Cincinnati in 1902.

At one point in the zany frame, Dubiel pitched 14 straight balls, but nary a hurler was warming up in the Cub bull pen, despite entreaties to Frisch from even the Phillies' rooters.

"I would have kept Dubiel in there for 99 runs before I'd have taken him out on that kind of performance," he fumed after the game.

"I may look bad for having kept such a pitcher in there against a contender, but I'm determined to find out what's going on. I'm sick of watching some of my pitchers getting into jams, peeping out to the bull pen to see if a reliever is ready to take over his work for him.

"IF I MAKE myself look bad it is not a novelty; maybe some of my players have been making me look pretty bad too.

"If any of those guys who walked had knocked the ball into the Schuylkill river I would have taken Dubiel out. But I've got to find out what's going on when a pitcher can walk six men in one inning and none in seven other innings.

"I want to find out if they have to have a lantern on the plate to find out where it is located."

Frisch made clear that he had no intention of helping the Phillies in their race for the pennant, and that he had no desire to help one contender against the other, but that he is merely intent on finding out the trouble with his pitching staff.

The Phils mixed two hits with their six walks to win 6-4.

Chicago Trotting Feature Divided

CHICAGO, July 27—Spengay and Sailor Signal traded victories in the $1,500 divided purse trotting feature last night at Chicago's Sportsman's Park.

Spengay, driven by A. Philips, covered the 6½ furlong first heat in 1:49 2-5. Fransonian was secoond and La Vitesse followed.

In the mile second division, O. Silvey piloted Sailor Signal to the finish in a slow 2:18 1-5. Fransonian placed again with Mottleys Choice third.

Detroit Staggers In AL Race

Lead Is Shaved To Half-Game

NEW YORK, July 27—The Detroit Tigers staggered around like guys who had taken one too many today, and the pink elephants they were seeing were real, live Yankees, Indians and Red Sox.

The stumbling Bengals were only a half-game to the good and the other three American League contenders closed in rapidly, ready to make the kill.

The unkindest cut of all was dealt the Tigers on their own home grounds yesterday. Mel Parnell, Boston's sore-shouldered 25-game winner of last season, outpitched Art Houtteman in a 1 to 0 thriller.

Marvelous Mel had his sore wing heat-treated before the game and then went out to freeze the home club with five hits to gain his seventh win.

The fourth-place Red Sox, minus most-valuable Theodore Williams now stand four and a half games off the pace.

OF IMMEDIATE importance to the harried Rolfemen, however, is the threat posed by the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians.

The Yankees came to within a half-game of the lead by stopping the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 3. Rookie Ed Ford was the winner although he needed the assistance of Tom Ferrick in the sixth inning.

Sad Sam Zoldak, a fellow who was on his way to the minors not too long ago, is the reason for the smile on Lou Boudreau's face today.

Sad Sam was the big reason the Indians defeated the Philadelphia Athletics 6 to 2, last night and moved to within a game and a half of the top spot.

Zoldak replaced Starter Mike Garcia in the third inning with the score tied at 2-all and blanked the A's on two hits for the rest of the game.

Everybody knows the Philadelphia Phillies are whizzes. Now it comes to light that the Phils can do tricks with numbers.

They scored six runs in the sixth inning on six walks and two hits to beat the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 4. The victory raised Philadelphia's National League lead to a game and a half over St. Louis.

Brooklyn moved into third place by besting the Cardinals, 7 to 5. The Brooks jumped on Harry Brecheen for five runs in the first two innings—two homers and two triples paved the way—and then coasted in.

Pittsburgh killed two Braves with one stone. They dropped the Tribe to fourth place by winning, 8 to 4, and they snuffed out Vern Bickford's seven-game winning streak.

Sal Maglie, the 33-year-old refugee from the bullpen, pitched and batted the New York Giants to a 3 to 2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Maglie won his seventh game and the New Yorkers' seventh straight with a single in the seventh inning. The righthander allowed six hits.

These Days

As for DeToledano, he is a young, ardent anti-Communist attached to Newsweek magazine, who co-authored "Seeds of Treason," an excellent book on the Hiss espionage. Is it a crime to be an anti-Communist, professional or amateur? You seem to make it a very wicked offense. Are we still appeasing Stalin? Are you not an anti-Communist?

Now, all this relates to Emmanuel S. Larsen and the magazine Plain Talk. I do not know and do not choose to inquire, because it would be silly, whether Levine and his associates edited Larsen's article.

My assumption is that they did. Most amateurs have to be edited. Magazines and newspapers employ editors to edit.

Tell me, Senator, have you never been edited? Has your copy always been letter perfect and always fitted the space? Have you never given someone a memorandum of ideas and asked that a speech or an article be written for you?

Well, Senator, I wish you luck. You have to live with this thing.

Faithfully Yours,
George E. Sokolsky

Frisch Insists On Study Of Lousy Pitching

PHILADELPHIA, July 27—Let the catcalls fall where they may, Manager Frankie Frisch of the Chicago Cubs insists he will continue his noble experiment today to determine if his pitchers need a lantern to find the plate.

Frisch sat stolidly in the dugout in Shibe Park last night and watched Walt Dubiel throw away a 4-0 lead and walk six Phillies in the sixth inning.

The modern National League record for bases on balls by one pitcher in an inning is seven, set by Buck Ewing of Cincinnati in 1902.

At one point in the zany frame, Dubiel pitched 14 straight balls, but nary a hurler was warming up in the Cub bull pen, despite entreaties to Frisch from even the Phillies' rooters.

"I would have kept Dubiel in there for 99 runs before I'd have taken him out on that kind of performance," he fumed after the game.

"I may look bad for having kept such a pitcher in there against a contender, but I'm determined to find out what's going on. I'm sick of watching some of my pitchers getting into jams, peeping out to the bull pen to see if a reliever is ready to take over his work for him.

"IF I MAKE myself look bad it is not a novelty; maybe some of my players have been making me look pretty bad too.

"If any of those guys who walked had knocked the ball into the Schuylkill river I would have taken Dubiel out. But I've got to find out what's going on when a pitcher can walk six men in one inning and none in seven other innings.

"I want to find out if they have to have a lantern on the plate to find out where it is located."

Frisch made clear that he had no intention of helping the Phillies in their race for the pennant, and that he had no desire to help one contender against the other, but that he is merely intent on finding out the trouble with his pitching staff.

The Phils mixed two hits with their six walks to win 6-4.

Chicago Trotting Feature Divided

CHICAGO, July 27—Spengay and Sailor Signal traded victories in the $1,500 divided purse trotting feature last night at Chicago's Sportsman's Park.

Spengay, driven by A. Philips, covered the 6½ furlong first heat in 1:49 2-5. Fransonian was secoond and La Vitesse followed.

In the mile second division, O. Silvey piloted Sailor Signal to the finish in a slow 2:18 1-5. Fransonian placed again with Mottleys Choice third.

Detroit Staggers In AL Race

Lead Is Shaved To Half-Game

NEW YORK, July 27—The Detroit Tigers staggered around like guys who had taken one too many today, and the pink elephants they were seeing were real, live Yankees, Indians and Red Sox.

The stumbling Bengals were only a half-game to the good and the other three American League contenders closed in rapidly, ready to make the kill.

The unkindest cut of all was dealt the Tigers on their own home grounds yesterday. Mel Parnell, Boston's sore-shouldered 25-game winner of last season, outpitched Art Houtteman in a 1 to 0 thriller.

Marvelous Mel had his sore wing heat-treated before the game and then went out to freeze the home club with five hits to gain his seventh win.

The fourth-place Red Sox, minus most-valuable Theodore Williams now stand four and a half games off the pace.

OF IMMEDIATE importance to the harried Rolfemen, however, is the threat posed by the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians.

The Yankees came to within a half-game of the lead by stopping the St. Louis Browns, 6 to 3, Rookie Ed Ford was the winner although he needed the assistance of Tom Ferrick in the sixth inning.

Sad Sam Zoldak, a fellow who was on his way to the minors not too long ago, is the reason for the smile on Lou Boudreau's face today.

Sad Sam was the big reason the Indians defeated the Philadelphia Athletics 6 to 2, last night and moved to within a game and a half of the top spot.

Zoldak replaced Starter Mike Garcia in the third inning with the score tied at 2-all and blanked the A's on two hits for the rest of the game.

Everybody knows the Philadelphia Phillies are whizzes. Now it comes to light that the Phils can do tricks with numbers.

They scored six runs in the sixth inning on six walks and two hits to beat the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 4. The victory raised Philadelphia's National League lead to a game and a half over St. Louis.

Brooklyn moved into third place by besting the Cardinals, 7 to 5. The Brooks jumped on Harry Brecheen for five runs in the first two innings—two homers and two triples paved the way—and then coasted in.

Pittsburgh killed two Braves with one stone. They dropped the Tribe to fourth place by winning, 8 to 4, and they snuffed out Vern Bickford's seven-game winning streak.

Sal Maglie, the 33-year-old refugee from the bullpen, pitched and batted the New York Giants to a 3 to 2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Maglie won his seventh game and the New Yorkers' seventh straight with a single in the seventh inning. The righthander allowed six hits.

Is it a crime to be an anti-Communist, professional or amateur? You seem to make it a very wicked offense. Are we still appeasing Stalin? Are you not an anti-Communist?

Now, all this relates to Emmanuel S. Larsen and the magazine Plain Talk. I do not know and do not choose to inquire, because it would be silly, whether Levine and his associates edited Larsen's article.

My assumption is that they did. Most amateurs have to be edited. Magazines and newspapers employ editors to edit.

Tell me, Senator, have you never been edited? Has your copy always been letter perfect and always fitted the space? Have you never given someone a memorandum of ideas and asked that a speech or an article be written for you?

Well, Senator, I wish you luck. You have to live with this thing.

Ohio State, Cincy Scoff At 'Sanity Code' Reports

COLUMBUS, July 27—Are the universities of Ohio State and Cincinnati at war with each other, the National Collegiate Athletic Association or a few Ohio sports writers?

No one seems to know and the two main parties involved —Ohio State and Cincinnati— apparently don't even care.

The entire ruckus started in Columbus Sunday when it was reported the NCAA had received complaints regarding Cincinnati's methods of complying with the football "sanity code."

Cincinnatians promptly labelled Ohio State the complainant in the alleged citaton and blasted the supposed attack as the first shot in a "war" between the two institutions for Ohio grid supremacy.

Next came a report that Ohio State has been cited to the NCAA with the resultant suspicion that Cincinnati interests might be involved.

"Not so," in either case, cry Cincinnati Grid Coach Sid Gillman and Ohio State Athletic Director Dick Larkins.

REGARDING the charge that Ohio State has complained to the NCAA, Larkins had this to say today:

"We are not getting into a war with anybody. We definitely did not cite Cincinnati to the NCAA and have never contemplated doing so."

The Buckeye head man admitted Ohio State has lost out in some duels with the Bearcats for certain Ohio scholastic grid stars. But he pointed out:

"We are always unhappy to lose good boys to any school. We don't consider such loss a basis for an underhanded attack, however."

Gillman stated emphatically: "I don't believe it."

The former Ohio State All-American went on to declare that "it's silly to believe that such a fine institution would stoop to such tactics." He explained:

"Anyone can send a letter to the NCAA complaining that a college or university is not living up to the code. Then this person could go to a newspaper or radio station and say that it is his understanding that such a complaint has been registered with the NCAA.

"It's a simple thing for an unscrupulous person to do."

Larkins admitted Ohio State might be under scrutiny at the present time but expressed confidence the Bucks will be cleared of any alleged infractions of the code. He said:

"WE HAVE BEEN critcized in two or three instances in the past. But each time we've been given a clean bill of health in preliminary investigations."

Gillman expressed similar comments. He stated:

"We are not disturbed in the least by the supposed charge to the NCAA. We are living up to all the rules and regulations of the NCAA."

If any complaints have been lodged, they will not be made public until the next meeting of the NCAA in Dallas, Tex., in January.

Yanks Nip Tigers In Midget Game In Park Here

Roger Graham and Bob Wellington teamed together for the winning mound duties for the Yanks. Joe Hill caught for the pair.

Line score of the midget fracas follows:

| | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Tigers ..... | 031 24—10 | 7 | 3 |
| Yankees ..... | 160 5x—12 | 8 | 5 |

Tod McKinney Hurls No-Hitter

Tod McKinney, former ace fireball hurler in the Circleville Night Softball League, Wednesday pitched a no-hitter in the Buckeye League in Columbus.

Bull-like McKinney elbowed himself into the no-hit win by fanning 10 of the opposing Wile batsmen and collecting two hits in three trips to plate. His Falter's team won a 4-0 margin.

Hole-In-One Chalked Up By Harold Hott

Harold Hott of Circleville, veteran of only five years in the gentle art of "cow-pasture shinny," Wednesday scored a hole-in-one at Pickaway Country Club.

Hott, accompanied on his rounds by Lovell and Verlin Blankenship, teed up his ball on the 155-yard number two hole and cracked it with a four iron.

The ball plunked into number two cup to give Hott the exclusive hole in one, the first one shot on the local course in three years.

Last non-stop flight of a ball from tee to cup at the local club was registered in 1947 by Don Gaetchel of Chillicothe, who operated the feat on number two with a seven iron. Rod Heine dropped another one in the same cup in 1946.

Hott received a certificate, a case of breakfast food, a year's supply of razor blades and a jug for his skill.

1949 Club Champ John Woods Falls Before Verlin Blankenship

John Woods, 1949 Pickaway Country Club golf champ, was unseated in the quarterfinals of this year's tournament by Verln Blankenship.

Blankenship handed the title defender a six and four defeat this week to advance himself into the semifinals of the championship flight.

Other quarterfinals winners in the top flight of the tournament were Dave Evans, 7 and 5 over Steve Brudzinski; Bob Friece, 3 and 1 over Richard Saxton; and John Jenkins, 1-up over Charles Saxton.

Jenkins, 1948 club champ, is to meet Friece before next Thursday in the semifinals of the contest, while Blankenship and Evans will tangle in the other semi.

This year's club golf champion will be named after the finals of the contest, slated to be held August 12.

• • •

MEANWHILE, pairings in the other five flights of this year's tourney are thinning out.

Following a series of forfeits, Dudley Carpenter scored a 6 and 4 victory over Bob Funk in the finals of the fourth flight. Carpenter won the fourth flight cup with the victory.

BILL OF HEALTH IS 'CLEAN'

Ohio State, Cincy Scoff At 'Sanity Code' Reports

COLUMBUS, July 27—Are the universities of Ohio State and Cincinnati at war with each other, the National Collegiate Athletic Association or a few Ohio sports writers?

No one seems to know and the two main parties involved —Ohio State and Cincinnati— apparently don't even care.

The entire ruckus started in Columbus Sunday when it was reported the NCAA had received complaints regarding Cincinnati's methods of complying with the football "sanity code."

Cincinnatians promptly labelled Ohio State the complainant in the alleged citaton and blasted the supposed attack as the first shot in a "war" between the two institutions for Ohio grid supremacy.

Next came a report that Ohio State has been cited to the NCAA with the resultant suspicion that Cincinnati interests might be involved.

"Not so," in either case, cry Cincinnati Grid Coach Sid Gillman and Ohio State Athletic Director Dick Larkins.

REGARDING the charge that Ohio State has complained to the NCAA, Larkins had this to say today:

"We are not getting into a war with anybody. We definitely did not cite Cincinnati to the NCAA and have never contemplated doing so."

The Buckeye head man admitted Ohio State has lost out in some duels with the Bearcats for certain Ohio scholastic grid stars. But he pointed out:

"We are always unhappy to lose good boys to any school. We don't consider such loss a basis for an underhanded attack, however."

Gillman stated emphatically: "I don't believe it."

The former Ohio State All-American went on to declare that "it's silly to believe that such a fine institution would stoop to such tactics." He explained:

"Anyone can send a letter to the NCAA complaining that a college or university is not living up to the code. Then this person could go to a newspaper or radio station and say that it is his understanding that such a complaint has been registered with the NCAA.

"It's a simple thing for an unscrupulous person to do."

Larkins admitted Ohio State might be under scrutiny at the present time but expressed confidence the Bucks will be cleared of any alleged infractions of the code. He said:

"WE HAVE BEEN criticized in two or three instances in the past. But each time we've been given a clean bill of health in preliminary investigations."

Gillman expressed similar comments. He stated:

"We are not disturbed in the least by the supposed charge to the NCAA. We are living up to all the rules and regulations of the NCAA."

If any complaints have been lodged, they will not be made public until the next meeting of the NCAA in Dallas, Tex., in January.

Yanks Nip Tigers In Midget Game In Park Here

Roger Graham and Bob Wellington teamed together for the winning mound duties for the Yanks. Joe Hill caught for the pair.

Line score of the midget fracas follows:

| | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|
| Tigers | 031 24—10 | 7 | 3 |
| Yankees | 160 5x—12 | 8 | 5 |

Tod McKinney Hurls No-Hitter

Tod McKinney, former ace fireball hurler in the Circleville Night Softball League, Wednesday pitched a no-hitter in the Buckeye League in Columbus.

Bull-like McKinney elbowed himself into the no-hit win by fanning 10 of the opposing Wile batsmen and collecting two hits in three trips to plate. His Falter's team won a 4-0 margin.

Hole-In-One Chalked Up By Harold Hott

Harold Hott of Circleville, veteran of only five years in the gentle art of "cow-pasture shinny," Wednesday scored a hole-in-one at Pickaway Country Club.

Hott, accompanied on his rounds by Lovell and Verlin Blankenship, teed up his ball on the 155-yard number two hole and cracked it with a four iron.

The ball plunked into number two cup to give Hott the exclusive hole in one, the first one shot on the local course in three years.

Last non-stop flight of a ball from tee to cup at the local club was registered in 1947 by Don Gaetchel of Chillicothe, who operated the feat on number two with a seven iron. Rod Heine dropped another one in the same cup in 1946.

Hott received a certificate, a case of breakfast food, a year's supply of razor blades and a jug for his skill.

Decline In Idle Pay Claims Noted In County

Continued Cases Up, Aide Says

Thomas Outlines State Regulations

A drop in new claims for unemployment compensation last week was reported by Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

The report showed that filing of new claims was five less than the week before, when 20 claims were registered.

Continued claim filings showed the same result in the opposite direction. The week before last 87 continued claims were filed, climbing last week to 92.

Throughout the state, however, a drop was noted in both new and continued claims over the two week period. New claims filed last week were given as 9,820, a drop of 1,089 from the 10,909 reported for the week before last.

CONTINUED claims dropped from 63,310 for the week ending July 15 to 62,099 for last week, a drop of 1,211.

C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, said that unless workers on unpaid vacation are actively seeking suitable work, they are not eligible for unemployment compensation benefits.

"A basic requirement of the state law," Thomas said, "is that workers eligible for jobless benefits must be able, available and actively seeking suitable work."

He explained that persons regularly employed were obviously ineligible for benefits while on paid vacations. Workers who are not in a paid vacation status and who actually are on a vacation away from any work opportunities are also ineligible.

Among the requirements a worker must meet to be eligible for benefits are:

1. He must have been in employment covered by the Ohio Law in 14 weeks during his base period and must have earned $240 or more in that period. The base period of a benefit applicant includes the first four of the last five completed calendar quarters immediately preceding the first day of the week in which he files a valid claim.

2. He must be actively seeking suitable work. In determining whether or not a job is suitable, the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation's administrator must take into consideration the worker's prior training and experience, the degree of risk to his health, safety and morals, his physical fitness for the work involved and other factors.

3. He must be unable to obtain suitable work.

4. He must accept an offer of suitable work when directed to do so and must not turn down any referral to such suitable work.

5. He must be able and available for suitable work.

6. He must sign an affidavit to the effect that he neither advocates the overthrow of the U. S. government by force nor belongs to an organization which advocates such action.

* * *

THE LAW ALSO provides that no person may be paid benefits for any period of unemployment if:

1. Such unemployment is due to a labor dispute.

2. The claimant knowingly makes a false statement or fails to report a material fact relative to such unemployment.

3. The claimant fails or refuses to report to the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation or any of its designated agencies as required by the BUC's rules.

4. The claimant leaves his job to attend school or because of marital, parental, filial or other domestic obligations.

5. The claimant is discharged for dishonesty in connection with his work or becomes unemployed by reason of commitment to a penal institution.

Labor Will Give No-Strike Pledge If Government Controls Prices

WASHINGTON, July 27 — Labor meets with Government today to determine its role in the defense program, but warned that it will not forego strikes or new wage demands until prices are placed under a ceiling.

National Security Resources Board Chairman W. Stuart Symington hopes to reach an agreement on Labor's position with a special top-level union committee which has been studying the problem for more than a week.

The nine-man group is expected to pledge its best efforts in helping to speed production of materials necessary for defense.

In advance of the session, Labor chiefs made it clear that they would agree to President Truman's request that they curb strikes and refrain from new wage demands only if strict government controls are clamped on prices.

One top AFL leader said in response to the President's request for the two pledges from union men:

"There isn't going to be any no-strike pledge unless we are guaranteed that labor's economic position will not deteriorate.

* * *

"THERE CERTAINLY will be a movement for further wage increases unless prices are rolled back to the level of June 25 (the date Communist forces invaded South Korea) and then frozen."

The chief executive in his mid-year economic report to Congress called for "unity on the economic front" among labor, business and consumers to check the upward price spiral.

Mr. Truman said:

"Wage demands of a character which might lead to another inflationary spiral should be avoided. Above all, Labor should join with Management in the further consolidation of industrial peace.

"Work stoppages in vital industries are something we simply cannot afford."

Meanwhile, the AFL and the CIO moved a step closer to a complete merger of the two organizations and further study was ordered into the complicated problem.

The eleven officials working on unification agreed that the "march of Communism" makes organic unity "a virtual must."

"Unity" talks between representatives of the two organizations are now in their third day.

Decline In Idle Pay Claims Noted In County

Continued Cases Up, Aide Says

Thomas Outlines State Regulations

A drop in new claims for unemployment compensation last week was reported by Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation.

The report showed that filing of new claims was five less than the week before, when 20 claims were registered.

Continued claim filings showed the same result in the opposite direction. The week before last 87 continued claims were filed, climbing last week to 92.

Throughout the state, however, a drop was noted in both new and continued claims over the two week period. New claims filed last week were given as 9,820, a drop of 1,089 from the 10,909 reported for the week before last.

CONTINUED claims dropped from 63,310 for the week ending July 15 to 62,099 for last week, a drop of 1,211.

C. C. Thomas, local BUC manager, said that unless workers on unpaid vacation are actively seeking suitable work, they are not eligible for unemployment compensation benefits.

"A basic requirement of the state law," Thomas said, "is that workers eligible for jobless benefits must be able, available and actively seeking suitable work."

He explained that persons regularly employed were obviously ineligible for benefits while on paid vacations. Workers who are not in a paid vacation status and who actually are on a vacation away from any work opportunities are also ineligible.

Among the requirements a worker must meet to be eligible for benefits are:

1. He must have been in employment covered by the Ohio Law in 14 weeks during his base period and must have earned $240 or more in that period. The base period of a benefit applicant includes the first four of the last five completed calendar quarters immediately preceding the first day of the week in which he files a valid claim.

2. He must be actively seeking suitable work. In determining whether or not a job is suitable, the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation's administrator must take into consideration the worker's prior training and experience, the degree of risk to his health, safety and morals, his physical fitness for the work involved and other factors.

3. He must be unable to obtain suitable work.

4. He must accept an offer of suitable work when directed to do so and must not turn down any referral to such suitable work.

5. He must be able and available for suitable work.

6. He must sign an affidavit to the effect that he neither advocates the overthrow of the U. S. government by force nor belongs to an organization which advocates such action.

* * *

THE LAW ALSO provides that no person may be paid benefits for any period of unemployment if:

1. Such unemployment is due to a labor dispute.

2. The claimant knowingly makes a false statement or fails to report a material fact relative to such unemployment.

3. The claimant fails or refuses to report to the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation or any of its designated agencies as required by the BUC's rules.

4. The claimant leaves his job to attend school or because of marital, parental, filial or other domestic obligations.

5. The claimant is discharged for dishonesty in connection with his work or becomes unemployed by reason of commitment to a penal institution.

Labor Will Give No-Strike Pledge If Government Controls Prices

WASHINGTON, July 27 — Labor meets with Government today to determine its role in the defense program, but warned that it will not forego strikes or new wage demands until prices are placed under a ceiling.

National Security Resources Board Chairman W. Stuart Symington hopes to reach an agreement on Labor's position with a special top-level union committee which has been studying the problem for more than a week.

The nine-man group is expected to pledge its best efforts in helping to speed production of materials necessary for defense.

In advance of the session, Labor chiefs made it clear that they would agree to President Truman's request that they curb strikes and refrain from new wage demands only if strict government controls are clamped on prices.

One top AFL leader said in response to the President's request for the two pledges from union men:

"There isn't going to be any no-strike pledge unless we are guaranteed that labor's economic position will not deteriorate.

* * *

"THERE CERTAINLY will be a movement for further wage increases unless prices are rolled back to the level of June 25 (the date Communist forces invaded South Korea) and then frozen."

The chief executive in his mid-year economic report to Congress called for "unity on the economic front" among labor, business and consumers to check the upward price spiral.

Mr. Truman said:

"Wage demands of a character which might lead to another inflationary spiral should be avoided. Above all, Labor should join with Management in the further consolidation of industrial peace.

"Work stoppages in vital industries are something we simply cannot afford."

Meanwhile, the AFL and the CIO moved a step closer to a complete merger of the two organizations and further study was ordered into the complicated problem.

The eleven officials working on unification agreed that the "march of Communism" makes organic unity "a virtual must."

"Unity" talks between representatives of the two organizations are now in their third day.
